NEW ORLEANS MAN EXERCISES OPTION

H. D. Smith, Jr., Purchaser, To Reach Atlanta Today; Options Obtained Early in March.

Purchase of four independent gasoline companies, operating a total of nearly 40 filling stations in various sections of the city, was consummated Friday for a consideration of approximately $300,000. It was disclosed with expiration of the option period. It is understood that S. C. Klein, representing H. D. Smith, Jr., of New Orleans, executed the option rights.

The four companies involved in the consolidation are the Reed Oil company, G. S. Bunch, the Log Cabin Gas and Oil company and the Holcomb Oil company, it was reported. It is believed that the Reed Oil company will serve as the nucleus in formation of the new independent chain of gasoline stations, and that the Reed name will be given to the company. However, this feature of the transaction has not been definitely decided, it was stated.

Mr. Smith is vice president of the Liberty Oil company, of New Orleans, but has purchased the Atlanta stations in his own name and will operate them as an independent enterprise, it was explained. He is expected to arrive in Atlanta today.

Options on the four groups of gasoline filling stations were obtained early in March and reentered on March 27 to make the dates of expiration mature at one time. On Friday, when the options matured, the right of purchase was exercised by Mr. Klein in the name of the purchaser.

Considerable interest has been attracted by several of the companies involved in the transaction because of the part they had played in what was termed recently a gasoline price war. It is understood that the newly created independent concern will operate at the regular market price.

Actual consolidation of the four companies and the 40 filling stations constituting these concerns will not be put into effect until Monday, the announcement stated. It was also brought out that some time would be required before unified operation of the several companies could be effected and until that time they are to continue operating under the present system and policies. No announcement was made in regard to future expansion or development of the combined enterprise.

ACWORTH WOMAN JAILED AS MACHINE STRIKES CHILD, 8

Eugene Blythe, 8, of 521 Marietta street, was taken to Grady hospital Friday night with a fractured skull and in a dying condition as the result of being struck down by an automobile driven by Miss Clarice Goodwin, 20, of Acworth, on Marietta road, near Inman Yards.

Miss Goodwin is being held at police station in default of a $10,000 bond, pending the outcome of the child's injuries.

County Officers J. E. Roberts and W. A. Vinson were told that Miss Goodwin and O. R. Green, of 409 Peachtree street, who were driving south on Marietta road, saw three boys standing on the sidewalk. As the car neared the trio, the Blythe child ran into the path of the machine, the occupants stated.

ATLANTIC FLIERS STOP IN CAPITAL TO HONOR BENNETT

Huenefeld, Fitzmaurice and Koehl Reach Washington But Avoid the Crowds.

Washington, April 27.—(P)—The three comrades of the air to whose help Floyd Bennett was flying when he contracted the illness that led to his death, arrived here tonight to pay tribute to his memory.

They came not as the crew of the Bremen who were first to span the Atlantic from east to west, however, but as Major James Fitzmaurice expressed it—solely as aviators to honor one who was an heroic member of their fraternity.

"Our intention while here is only to visit Floyd Bennett's grave," he said, "and then to return immediately by air to New York early tomorrow."

Their mission did not dampen the impromptu reception accorded them, for the hundreds that had gathered in the concourse of union station cheered until Bolling field aviation officers had rushed them away.

Baron von Huenefeld first visited the German embassy to pay his respects to Ambassador von Prittwitz, then rejoining his countryman, Captain Hermann Koehl, and Fitzmaurice at Bolling field. The three spent their first night in the United States as guests of their fellow aviators in the American army.

They had been greeted in their private car upon arrival by officials of the German embassy and Irish legation, along with Assistant Secretaries Warner and Davison, in charge of aviation for the navy and war departments respectively. Precautions had been taken to make their reception as informal as possible. Outsiders were rigidly excluded.

Upon leaving the car, Warner suggested to Fitzmaurice that the weather here would remind him of Greenville Island. "Yes, it is similar," the Irishman laughingly rejoined, as he lightened the collar of his red wool jacket to shield away the cold-driving rain.

Fitzmaurice said that Bernt Balchen, who piloted him and his companions from Greenville Island to Curtis field, Long Island, had been left in New York and might fly here early.

STRUCK BY TRUCK, BOY, 12, IS DYING

Another Lad Badly Hurt When Heavy Vehicle Crashes Into Youthful Cyclists.

Hurled from their bicycles when a truck crashed into the vehicles at the corner of Ormond and Crew streets late Friday afternoon, Washington Brooks, 12-year-old son of Mrs. Hattie Brooks, of 825 Capitol avenue, is in a dying condition at Grady hospital, and Randall Lester, 12-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. T. E. Lester, of 928 Washington street, is in Grady hospital suffering from several lacerations about the head.

Charles McCree, of 203 Chestnut street, negro driver of the truck owned by a local paint company, was being held Friday night without bond on a charge of reckless driving.

The Brook youth suffered a fracture.

GRAVE IS BESIDE THAT OF PEARY

Conqueror of Air Route to Pole Is Buried With Full Military Ceremony at Capital.

BY KIRKE L. SIMPSON.
Member A. P. Washington Bureau Staff.

Washington, April 27.—(P)—Honors reserved for those who achieve high place in service under the flag were bestowed in the name of the American people today on Floyd Bennett, naval aviator, who shared with Byrd the first flight to the north pole.

First American to die of that gallant fellowship of adventurers of the skies who have written their names in world history during the swift years just over, Bennett was laid to his long sleep deep in a rain-drenched, steep-sloping hillside of Arlington National cemetery that looks out toward the north and the icy barriers that guard the pole.

Just a week ago he set out to carry relief to German and Irish comrades of the air, and he died on the way, a victim of the weather.

For this young knight of the new chivalry of the air, although humble his rank, full military honors were accorded. A battalion of blue-jacketed comrades was his escort; three rippling rifle volleys, crackling through the rain and cold wind that swept the hillside, paid him a sailor's salute and the soft roll of a bugle sounded him to rest with "taps," lights-out for soldiers or sailors on ship or shore.

Crowds Brave Storm.

Despite a downpour that grew heavier as time passed, the roped enclosure about the waiting grave was banked about with men and women for hours before the solemn strains of the navy band told that the aviator was coming to the end of his long last journey from Quebec. Above the grave itself, a brown tent fly had been stretched by army comrades, and along the sides were barked rows of wreaths and clusters of bright flowers. The first to be set in place was that from President and Mrs. Coolidge.

When the train pulled in, a motor hearse awaited, as the military funeral was to start only at the gate of the old cemetery itself. High officials of the navy and of other government departments had gathered in honor of this humble sailor-aviator, however, and it was the hands of command petty officers in the navy that lifted the casket down and bore it out to the hearse.

A swift trip across the city followed, few of those on the rain-swollen streets.

NEW HEATING BIDS SHOW BIG SAVING

City To Save $45,487 on School Estimates, Ritchie Says; Loftis Low Bidder.

After having rejected all bids for the heating and plumbing contracts for the three junior high schools to be erected, the joint contract committee of the board of education and the board of public works today announced that the bid of G. Lloyd Precher Co., of 1015 Peachtree street, was the lowest.

The Loftis Heating and Plumbing company submitted the lowest combined and also the lowest individual bid. The Loftis bid was more than $2,000 lower than the next in line.

The joint committee will meet again at 5 o'clock Monday afternoon in the office of G. Lloyd Precher Co., architects for the schools, to go over in detail the 10 bids submitted, preparatory to recommendations which will go before city council at its next meeting.

Chicago Bomb.

Chicago, April 27.—(United News.)—A west side tailor shop was wrecked today by a bomb which had been placed in an adjacent vacant building. Hyman Glazov, his wife and two children, living in the rear, were thrown from their beds but uninjured. A cleaners' and dyers' war is blamed by police.

More Mail Loot.

Chicago, April 27.—(United News.)—Postal inspectors broke open a secret panel in the home of Charles Cleaver, under indictment for the $133,000 Evergreen mail robbery, and found $80,000 and a heavy store of guns and ammunition. Police say the money was part of the loot and brings the total recovered to $43,000.

Four Die as Result of High Winds; Trees Uprooted and Houses Are Blown Down.

RAINS CONTINUE TO MENACE CROPS

The elements beset a wide area of the south today with a three-cornered onslaught of floods, high winds and heavy precipitation which wrought large damage to property and crops, caused at least four deaths and left sharply colder weather in their wake.

Florida and Georgia, still menaced by the ravages of streams swelled beyond banks by torrential rains of nearly a week ago, bore the brunt of the assault that flung gales of tornado proportions accompanied by further hard rains and some hail within their borders.

To the northeast, the Shenandoah valley of Virginia was snowbound after a blizzard that left a depth of 12 inches on the ground and snow also fell in the mountainous regions of North Carolina and eastern Kentucky, heralded by unseasonably cold weather that imperiled fruit crops in the latter regions.

A general rain and wind storm whipped virtually the whole width of Florida over a 150-mile area from Bartow, in the south central portion, to St. Augustine, on the north. Houses were unroofed in scattered sections, trees uprooted, lines of communication interrupted and highways and railroad tracks washed out by the disturbance.

Four persons were killed in widely separated points of the state, two boys being electrocuted at Tampa by "live" wires, a man dying at Cocoa in a similar manner and a negro man being crushed to death when he was caught in the wreckage of his house at Dunellon.

Damage to crops, property and public utilities was believed to have been extensive, a small area north of Ocala suffering perhaps the heaviest. Hail fell at many points, while at Palatka an inch and a half of rain was recorded in a few hours. Other cities recorded less than a half inch.

The complete list of contestants follows: First district, Benjamin J. Sheppard, Jr., Savannah; second district, John Maddox, Bainbridge; third district, Irma Wynn, Cordelle; fourth district, Virginia Alsbrook, LaGrange; fifth district, Lloyd B. Kingsberry, Atlanta; sixth district, John Harrison, Macon; seventh district, Lydia Womelsdorf, Cartersville; eighth district, Gilbert Maxwell, Washington; ninth district, Charles McCollum, Wrens; eleventh district, Ruth Forrest Tucker, Brunswick; twelfth district, James Rountree, Swainsboro.

Twelve high school students, one from each congressional district, participated in the state contest Friday. Although given strong competition, young Kingsberry won by a clear margin of three points over his nearest opponent, the winning student's rating being five points against Miss Tucker's eight, and against Harrison's fourteen.

The decision of the judges was completed by the adding of the place given Standing, James Rountree, Benjamin J. Sheppard, Jr., Gilbert Maxwell, John Maddox, Lloyd B. Kingsberry, winner of first place; John Harrison, Alexander B. Russell and Charles McCollum.

Contest Winner.

Lloyd B. Kingsberry, student of Tech High school, Friday afternoon won the opportunity to represent Georgia at the national semi-finals of the oratorical contest at Raleigh, N. C., when he was awarded first place in the Georgia state contest held at the state capitol under auspices of The Constitution.

Kingsberry was one of the few contestants who utilized gestures in his oration. His voice proved to be clear and full of warmth, carrying a strong note of conviction. His address showed the results of deep study of his subject and most careful preparation, and won the warm applause of a large audience.

Second place was won by Miss Ruth Tucker, of Brunswick, representing the eleventh district, and third place by John Harrison, of Macon, representing the sixth district.

Low of 42 Expected Today, With Rise in Temperature To Follow; Fair Weather Due.

Stiff, cold winds sweeping out of the northeast down on Atlanta Friday and actuated by severe storms off Cape Hatteras, sending the city in a shivering run for winter clothing, ceased late Friday night. Today will open with a low temperature of about 42 degrees, chill aftermath of the meteorological disturbance, but shortly afterward will climb into a warmer and balmy state of weather, according to C. F. von Herrmann, meteorologist of the local weather bureau.

While Friday's low mark was only 44 degrees, the stiffest winds that this April has seen, intensified the cold and whipped it through topcoats and doors not too well constructed.

The severe storm disturbances occurring late Thursday night off Hatteras sent gales through the northeast and caused a generally radical drop in temperatures throughout the section.

While the winds will have spent themselves today, according to Mr. von Herrmann, there will still be sufficient breeze this morning to prevent frost, and after a brief chilly spell this morning, the sun will reign this afternoon and fair weather generally will prevail over the week-end.

Friday opened with temperature at 58 degrees, and it mounted shortly afterward to 59 degrees, and then struck by the stiff chill winds, the mercury tumbled rapidly to a low mark of 44 degrees.

Slaughter in China.

Shanghai, April 27.—(United News.)—Seven thousand persons were slaughtered when a bandit horde, believed to be army deserters, sacked Kingmen, according to reports reaching here today.

National Contest.

If successful at the semi-finals at Raleigh on May 11, Kingsberry will represent this section of the country at the national contest in Washington, D. C., May 25.

The subject of all of the orations was "The Constitution of the United States." Governor L. G. Hardman presided at the contest. As winner of first place, Kingsberry was awarded $100 in gold offered by The Constitution. Winners of second and third place were given $10 in gold each, while each of the twelve contestants received $10 in gold for winning the district contest.

The present contest is the fifth national oratorical contest, sponsored in Georgia by The Constitution. Each of the twelve contestants won his or her way through the various stages of the contest in the congressional districts. The contests are held every year to stimulate interest in the constitution of the United States.

Following a get-acquainted meeting in the editorial rooms of The Constitution Friday morning, with James A. Hollomon, associate editor, in charge as unofficial master of ceremonies, the contestants were entertained with a luncheon before going to the capitol for the contest.

Governor Hardman made a short address at the conclusion of the contest, praising The Constitution and the Georgia High School association for their efforts in sponsoring the contest, and stating that he believed the contests would aid in making citizens live up to the provisions of the constitution. He pointed to the beneficial effects of the contest, and urged that, in the future, discussion of the Georgia state constitution be included.

SILVER WEDDING FESTIVAL COSTS $100,000 IN PARIS

Paris, April 27.—(P)—The dinner party for which Mr. and Mrs. Walter Alfred May had brought 64 guests from their home city of Pittsburgh, Pa., to celebrate the silver anniversary of their wedding was held tonight in the restaurant Place L'Opera, owned by another Pittsburgher, Lee H. Weiler.

Weiler said that he "used to know Walter May when he didn't have enough money to buy a meal," but tonight the entertainment provided by the 55-year-old owner of a string of department stores reached a climax which placed it on a par with the significance of the expansive pre-war times when Russian grand dukes and Indian potentates toured Paris.

The lowest estimate which has been heard of the cost of bringing to France and entertaining the wedding party which saw the Mays united April 27, 1903, is $100,000. The menu of tonight's banquet was worthy of the day of Louis XIV and for those who chose there were wines bottled before Pittsburgh had been chartered as a city. Not only had May enabled his guests to chat with home folks by telephone during the festivities but his constant attention to detail was shown in the provision of instruments of the American type so that no one would lose a second of their expensive two-minute transatlantic talk through wrestling with the "queer" French design.

Up to the moment of his death Mr. Madden had been in a cheerful mood. Word of Mr. Madden's death spread rapidly and within a few minutes the house, in whose stormy legislative battles he had participated 23 years, adjourned out of respect for the "chief," as he was called by many of his friends.

There was silence in the chamber as the announcement was made and members seemed stunned at the news that the white-haired chairman of the house appropriations committee, for

Two magnificent presentations, one the Wagnerian "Die Walkure," one of the trilogy forming the famous "Ring," and the other Bellini's "Norma," from the ancient Italian school, brought Atlanta's 1928 opera season close to its climax and provided two audiences with thrills and entrainment at the auditorium Friday. The Wagner opera was offered in the afternoon with the crowd shivering through its enjoyment and the Bellini opera was presented Friday night before one of the largest crowds of the entire week.

"Norma" proved to be a triumph in every respect. It was a triumph for Rosa Ponselle. It was a triumph for the Atlanta Music Festival association.

HARRIS IS PUSHING GEORGIA FLOOD AID

BY R. E. POWELL,
Special Correspondent.
Washington, April 27.—(Special.) Importance of flood control in Georgia, accentuated by flood conditions now prevailing in sections of the state, was evidenced today in the activity of Senator William J. Harris, who renewed his efforts to hasten work anticipated under his senate amendment which provides for a careful investigation by army engineers.

The work sponsored by Senator Harris contemplates studies of Georgia rivers in the interest of water power development and navigation as well as flood control, but the problem of controlling the waterways has assumed such importance in light of recent developments that he urged prompt action in order that floods may be prevented in the future.

Engineers Plan Work.

The senator was assured by the war department that the rivers and tributaries now flooding their banks would be among the first on which preliminary work is soon to be started by the engineers. A member of the senate commerce committee, having charge of all bills relating to rivers and harbors, Senator Harris secured passage of the amendment two years ago. Discussing flood conditions as reported in news dispatches today, he said:

"I deeply regret the loss of crops and other damage reported in south Georgia. The surveys I have been instrumental in providing for should do much in the future to prevent such occurrences. I am extremely hopeful that the work can be started immediately."

Allotments Made.

Rivers for which allotments already have been made, with others to follow as soon as practicable, are:

Savannah, $2,600; Altamaha and tributaries, $3,200; Mobile, including Coosa, Flint, Chattahoochee, Etowah, Oostanaula and other tributaries, $80,000; St. Mary's, $600; Satilla, $600; Suwannee, $1,500; Apalachicola, $25,000. While the main stream of the Mobile and Coosa rivers lie outside of Georgia many of the tributaries and headwaters are in the state. The department made clear that the allotments were not for actual flood control work but were for a general study and investigation.

The war department advised Senator Harris that preliminary work on other streams will be started as soon as possible and that with information obtained from this preliminary work engineers will proceed with the actual surveys. Field work will be started immediately, the war department advised and contemplated that the work will be completed in about three years.

BOWDON METHODIST TO HAVE HOME-COMING

These are the things that are making many new friends and customers for us—the essentials that are making our business grow by leaps and bounds—bringing to us the largest trade we have ever enjoyed.

Food buyers more and more are looking to quality—to cleanliness—to wholesomeness—in food products. They are learning that good, pure, clean, high-quality foods bring health and happiness. They realize that a few cents saved sometimes in buying food products is false economy—that there is waste in buying an item of food that is not so good and wholesome that every particle of it can be consumed.

Of course, grocery buyers recognize that our prices, in the main, are as low, and frequently lower, than elsewhere—but even if they were not—they know they are going to get satisfying, high-quality products, served by courteous, efficient sales clerks, in clean attractive stores when they visit one of our nearly 400 stores in the southeast.

JOHN D., JR., GETS STEWART EVIDENCE IN TEAPOT QUIZ

Washington, April 27.—(P)—A transcript of Robert W. Stewart's testimony before the Senate Teapot Dome committee last Tuesday, was forwarded by Chairman Nye today to John D. Rockefeller, Jr., for his information. The North Dakota senator wrote that in view of Mr. Rockefeller's interest in the first testimony given by the chairman of the board of Standard Oil Company of Indiana, he assumed he would be more interested even in the story disclosing that Stewart received $750,000 of the Liberty bond profits of the Continental Trading Company of Canada.

LUKEWARM MEMBERS OF CHURCHES SCORED

Despite inclement weather, another large crowd was present Friday night when Dr. John E. White, pastor of the First Baptist church, of Savannah, delivered another forceful sermon at the Gordon Street Baptist church, bringing to a close the first of a two weeks' revival service being conducted at the institution.

Speaking on the general theme of "The Love of God," Dr. White continued to lay sin, and called on adults to set an example of love, service and sacrifice to the younger generation. He blamed lukewarm members of the church for the slow progress being made in the attempt to save the world "for Jesus Christ," declaring they prefer to satisfy their own desires for power and preferment instead of subordinating themselves to the service of the church.

and the loving God they are supposed to worship wholeheartedly. Dr. White will fill the pulpit at the morning service Sunday and at 7:30 o'clock Sunday night. He also will speak at 10 o'clock each morning and at 7:30 o'clock each night next week, bringing the revival to a close with the sermon Sunday night, May 8.

There will be no services today.

Brown Thrasher Proves Favorite Of Children Here

The brown thrasher is favored by Atlanta school children as the bird best suited to reign Georgia's woodlands and fields, according to results of a ballot announced Friday by the Fifth District Federation of Women's Clubs.

This shy singer, whose lyric notes are known to every Boy Scout and Camp Fire Girl, received 18,756 second votes in his nomination as Georgia's most popular bird of the wilds. The red-headed woodpecker ran second with 10,047 votes, while the purple martin was third with a total of 5,103 ballots.

These three contenders for state honors were chosen by the Atlanta Bird club, and the Georgia Federation of Women's Clubs in compiling the state wide ballot, results of which will be announced at a meeting in Decatur next month, it was announced.

Much interest is being evinced, officials say, in the contest for supremacy among Georgia's best-known birds: the brown thrasher, a great singer; the red-headed woodpecker, a fine drummer, and the martin, an aerial acrobat.

Church Body Accepts Revised Prayer Book Of Church of England

London, April 27.—(P)—Final approval of the revised prayer book measure of the Church of England was voted today at a special session of the church assembly. The measure about which so much controversy has centered now goes to the house of commons for acceptance or rejection.

The total vote was 306 for the revision and 153 against it, divided as follows: In the house of bishops, 22 for and 2 against; in the house of clergy, 183 for and 50 against; in the house of laity, 181 for and 92 against. The original revision was rejected by the house of commons after a stormy debate and the book again went back to the house of bishops for modification to meet objections by the evangelical element of the church. The changes made were devoted mainly to an attempt to remove misunderstandings concerning the revised book's pronouncement on reservation of the sacrament.

GERMANY REPLIES TO U. S. PROPOSAL FOR WAR TREATY

Berlin, April 27.—(P)—Dr. Gustav Stresemann, the foreign minister, tonight handed to Jacob Gould Schurman, the American ambassador, the German reply to Secretary Kellogg's anti-war proposal.

The German reply was also brought to the notice of the ambassadors of the other powers to whom the American proposal was submitted.

Neither the foreign office nor the American embassy is yet willing to divulge the contents of the German note, which, it is learned, will be published simultaneously on Tuesday next in the interested capitals.

Jonah Methuselah, Texas Horned Toad, Is Bound for Home

Little Jonah Methuselah, the noted Texas horned toad who was sent for a visit to The Constitution by Dr. F. M. Johnson, of Throckmorton, Texas, departed Friday night in his special tin Pullman for his home, after a week's stay in the Gate City of the South.

With every little horn on him fairly heisting with good humor and contentment, Jonah asked The Constitution to say that he had enjoyed his stay very much and was very favorably impressed with the masculine portion of the city.

He declared, however, that as far as women went, that henceforth, he, Jonah Methuselah, would be a severe misogynist. "They don't like me," the little fellow remarked sadly, "so why should I like them?"

Jonah Methuselah was taken into custody by Dr. Johnson, a former resident of Georgia, near Throckmorton, a short distance from Eastland.

JUGO-SLAV VOTE QUAKE RELIEF FUND

Belgrade, Jugo-Slavia, April 27.—(United News).—The Jugo-Slav parliament today voted $50,000 for relief of victims in the Balkan earthquake regions. Of this sum, $30,000 will be sent to the affected districts in Bulgaria and $20,000 to those in Greece. Meanwhile, it is reported that Wednesday night's renewed shocks in Corinth swelled the death-roll by 14 and levelled nine neighboring villages. Messages from Varva stated that a tidal wave swept the Black sea and destroyed houses and bathing establishments.

Student Editor Named. Fellow students at the North Georgia college at Dahlonega, unanimously elected Ortel Monroe, a son of Dr. and Mrs. D. H. Monroe, of Emory, as editor of the Cyclops for the next scholastic year. The Cyclops is the official organ of the student body at Dahlonega.

GEORGIA TO GET AGRICULTURE AID

Washington, April 27.—(Special.) The agriculture department appropriation bill, carrying several items for work in Georgia, passed its final stage in Congress today when the conference committee representing senate and house agreed to most of its provisions and prepared to submit the bill for final consideration.

Senator William J. Harris, of Georgia, one of the senate conferees, announced after the committee meeting that all items of special interest to Georgia undoubtedly would be included in the bill as finally approved. The bill probably will be passed early next week.

Increase in Funds. Senator Harris obtained an increase to $35,000 of the amount to be used by the agriculture department in its study of new uses for cotton. The same item was written into the commerce department appropriation bill through the efforts of Senator Harris, making the total amount for use in this work $70,000. For the study of the phoney disease, which damaged peach crops materially, the appropriation was increased from $10,000 to $15,000. Other items which Senator Harris was instrumental in having approved by both houses were:

Tifton Appropriation. For experiments with forage crops, to be made at the coastal plains experiment station, at Tifton, Ga., $7,000, for experiments with tobacco, continued several years under an appropriation secured by the senator and to be conducted at the Tifton station, $10,000.

For studies in methods for making paper from southern pine, obtained two years ago by the senator, continued in the amount of $15,000. The bill also carries an appropriation for experiments with poisons for eradication of the boll weevil, more recently discovered and cheaper than calcium arsenate. This work was begun under an appropriation of $100,000 obtained by Senator Harris.

Rising Waters Threaten Levee On White River

Memphis, Tenn., April 27.—(P)—Levee engineers at Des Arc, Ark., today sent help to a point in the White river levee about four miles north of Des Arc, where the rising river threatened to break the main dyke.

The dangerous point is where the levee is "tied" to a hill. In the event of a break there, a wide territory of cultivated land on the east side of the White river extending almost to Cotton Plant, would be flooded. The town of Des Arc was in no danger since it is situated on high ground.

The levee at Biscoe also was in a dangerous condition, reports received here said, and while hope was entertained for holding it, residents of the dyke moved to higher ground. Engineers believed they had saved the Ellis Landing levee, which today was a foot and a half above the water and sand bags were being piled on it. The White river was expected to come to a stationary stage at Georgetown, Ark., late today at about 28 feet. The levee opposite the town was holding.

HARRIS HIGHWAY BILL IS FILED FOR SENATE VOTE

Washington, April 27.—(Special.) The Harris bill to provide for paving the government road from Chattanooga and Chickamauga National Park to Ringgold, Va., was favorably reported to the senate today and placed on the calendar.

Senator Walter E. George, of Georgia, called the bill up before the senate committee, of which he is a member, and obtained favorable consideration. An identical bill by Congressman M. C. Tarror, of the seventh Georgia district, has passed the house, and Senator Harris said that when his bill came before the senate he would ask that the house bill be substituted in order that there might be no delay in obtaining final passage. Senator Harris was confident the bill would be approved and that paving would be started in the near future, giving Georgia an excellent highway approaching the military reservation.

NEW SHRINE UNITS ENTERTAINED HERE

Hospitality of the real hearty Atlanta type was lavished on nobles of four temples of the Shrine Fraternity Friday as the visitors stopped over.

at this oasis on their way to Mecca, which is now Miami, to attend the imperial council sessions next week. The party of Shriners from Sessoris Temple, Lincoln, Neb., which arrived in Atlanta Thursday night, remained over until Friday night and joined the three newly-arrived temples in Friday afternoon and night's program of entertainment sponsored by Yaarab Temple of Atlanta.

Temples arriving Friday afternoon were Indian, of Oklahoma City, Okla.; Danavos, of Rochester, N. Y.; and Murat, of Indianapolis, Ind. Many smaller parties, of several nobles each, drifted through the city Friday on the way to Miami, and passed long enough to partake of the oasis' entertainment program.

Given Automobile Rides. Many of the visiting nobles were entertained Friday afternoon on rides to Stone Mountain and other points of interest around Atlanta. The visitors were guests at dinner, and took in the performance at Keith's Georgia theater as guests of Yaarab.

In the party from Murat Temple were Elias J. Jacoby, past imperial potentate, and "father" of the $2,000,000 Shrine mosque at Indianapolis. The Murat temple concert band of 60 men, directed by Fred Jewell, old-time circus band leader, and the crack Arab patrol, headed by Vernon G. Sheller, form an important part of the delegation. The Murat party is traveling in a special train of 15 Pullmans.

Roltare Eggleston, manager of Keith's Georgia theater, was especially glad to see the Murat nobles in Atlanta, as he formerly resided in Indianapolis and is still a member of Murat, being a former officer of the temple.

Esten Fletcher, a member of the imperial divan, is with the party of nobles from Danavos Temple. Delegations of Shriners expected to stop over in Atlanta today include Osiris Temple, of Wheeling, W. Va.; Maskat Temple, of Wichita Falls, Texas; Al Malahak Temple, of Los Angeles, Calif.; Kosair Temple, of Louisville, Ky.; Orak Temple, of Hammond, Ind.; Hadil Temple, of Evansville, Ind.; Zorah Temple, of Terre Haute, Ind.; Syria Temple, of Cincinnati, Ohio; and Tebla Temple, of Rockford, Ill.

Al Malahak Temple hopes to capture the 1929 imperial council sessions for Los Angeles, it was said. An announcement of this temple's ambition said: "Potentate Kenneth H. Gillette is taking with him the ammunition necessary to secure for Los Angeles the imperial council session for 1929, when Leo V. Youngworth of Los Angeles, next in line for the honor, will be made imperial potentate." Youngworth will be in the Los Angeles party.

The largest single party of the week will arrive Sunday morning, when Medinah Temple, of Chicago, Ill., 1,000 strong, reaches Atlanta in six special trains.

Leroy Gunn, negro, living in the rear of a St. Charles way address, was knocked down and seriously injured Friday night by an automobile driven by Julius Piroetto, a University student, of 314 Fourth street, N. E., as Gunn was crossing Ponce de Leon avenue near the baseball park. Piroetto reported the accident to police station and stated that the negro stepped suddenly into the path of his car.

Grady Bailey, negro, of 370 Merritts avenue, N. W., was knocked down and slightly injured by an automobile driven by J. C. Curran, of 900 Drexley street, on Ponce de Leon avenue, near Piedmont avenue. Curran had left the scene of the accident before Patrolman Charles M. Hajos arrived.

ATLANTA WILL ASK 1929 CONVENTION OF POLICEWOMEN

The 1929 convention of the International Association of Policewomen will be sought for Atlanta when the organization meets May 2 to 9 in Memphis, Tenn., it was announced Friday by Mrs. Lora E. Davis, captain of the woman's bureau of the local police department. Delegates from 28 cities will assemble in Memphis for the meeting.

MAN HELD ON CHARGE OF BEATING WOMAN

J. F. Hendricks, 20, of 1125 Mathews street, was bound over to the Fulton county grand jury under $300 bond Friday afternoon on a charge of assault and battery by Recorder A. W. Callaway.

It was brought out at the hearing in court that Hendricks stepped from behind a tree on Woodward avenue, near Cooper street, and struck a pistol in the side of a young white woman. The woman screamed and Hendricks is said to have struck her over the head with the pistol and then struck her in the face several times with his fist before escaping.

HICKMAN'S DEATH DATE PASSES BUT SLAYER STILL LIVES

San Quentin, Calif., April 27.—(P)—William Edward Hickman's appeal of his sentence to hang for the kidnapping and killing of Marian Parker, Los Angeles schoolgirl, automatically stayed his execution, which had been set for today by the trial court.

Until the state supreme court renders a decision in the case, Hickman cannot be sent to the gallows. Date of the supreme court hearing is indefinite.

The youth has attracted little attention in the state prison here and is described by the authorities as "well behaved."

tured skull, a fractured collar bone and a broken leg, and doctors at Grady stated that his chances of life were slim.

According to the police reports of Call Officers J. A. Brown and C. E. McVary, the two boys were going home on a bicycle when they were struck by the truck, going east on Ormond street. After striking the bicycles the truck turned over three times.

Child Runs Into Auto. W. G. Paige, 9, of 201 Simpson street, narrowly escaped injury Friday morning when he darted into the right rear fender of an automobile driven by W. Guy Stone, of 779 Curran street, on Marietta, near Jones street, and was struck by the car.

In backing from the curb at Houston and Gay streets, an automobile driven by W. B. Disbro, of 616 Whitehall street, struck a parked automobile belonging to Ralph E. Ridley, of 1129 Crescent avenue, and drove Ridley's machine into a whitewash street, according to a report to Call Officers Higgins and Brown.

ACUTE HEART ATTACK TAKES G. O. P. LEADER

whom all had deep admiration and respect, had passed from their ranks. Mr. Madden was 73 years of age and was serving his twelfth continuous term as a representative from the first Chicago congressional district.

He is survived by his widow and one daughter, Mrs. Paul Henderson, wife of a former assistant postmaster general. Mr. Madden's body was taken to his Washington home where it will lie in state until Sunday. Then it will be brought to the capital to lie in state between noon and 2 p. m. in the chamber of the house. It will be placed on a train for Chicago where funeral services will be held at his home at Hinsdale, Chicago suburb, Monday.

As chairman of the appropriation committee, Mr. Madden was a power both in the work of the house and in the administration of the fiscal affairs of the nation. Each year it was his duty to see that the federal government totalled more than $4,000,000,000.

Devoted to Duty. All ten of the annual supply bills had passed through the house stage of their legislative journey and five had become law. The other five remain in conference but their financial outlines were clearly established, they, in common with the others, bearing in mind the nation's need of the unflinching devotion to duty that marked Madden's service.

A gladiator of the first rank, the veteran congressman had taken an active part in affairs of the house. It was to him that the administration entrusted leadership in the struggle to reduce the tariff and control bill opposed by President Coolidge.

That was Madden's last great effort. Even as he fought it out on the floor, the nation's eyes were turned above him and it seemed to those who looked down on the struggle that his voice was not so ringing, that his dynamic energy was not so strong, his swift answer to challenge in argument was a little shaded by physical weakness. But the spirit that drove him was as strong as ever.

Several times during consideration of the flood bill, Madden was called to the white house for conference with Mr. Coolidge and was regarded as spokesman for the president.

Among the many echoes of the April 10 primary with which Chicago still resounds is that of Mr. Madden's strenuous contest with William Dawson, negro, for re-nomination in the first district. The district is composed of the first, second and third wards and its population is predominantly negro.

Beats Negro for Renomination. Negro leaders demanded a negro congressman to represent them and Mr. Madden did not wage a personally active campaign. However, Mayor William Hale Thompson and other leaders urged the white man to run, and the district could be represented to better advantage by a white man, and especially Mr. Madden.

Madden won hands down, and, since the district normally is republican, the aged congressional leader virtually was assured another term, which would have been his thirtieth.

The vacancy on the republican ticket caused by Madden's death will be filled by a select committee by the republican committee from the wards of the district some time before November. Homer K. Galpin, chairman of the county central committee, said after he was informed of the death of the legislator.

The committee charged with the selection under the Galpin plan are Daniel M. Jackson and Oscar E. Priest, negroes, and Daniel Serritello. On the other hand, some politicians said that since Mr. Madden had not been given a certificate of nomination, it could not be issued in his name, and, following a recently established precedent, necessarily would go to the negro, Dawson.

COOLIDGE SENDS HIS CONDOLENCES

Washington, April 27.—(P)—President Coolidge sent Mrs. Martin B. Madden his condolences at the death of her husband today, praising Madden as one of our great men, both because of his personal character and public policies.

OFFICIALS PAY TRIBUTE TO MADDEN. Washington, April 27.—(P)—High officials of the government joined today in a common tribute to Martin B. Madden, whose long career as a member of the house from Illinois has been ended by death.

In dispatching message of condolence to Mrs. Madden. Mr. Madden's service to his country was described by Representative Garrett, of Tennessee, the democratic leader, as "of inestimable value."

"He had the courage to say no and his every interest seemed always to be the protection of the public treasury," Garrett said. "He will be missed from the congress as few men have been."

CHICAGO MOURNS VETERAN LATOR

Chicago, April 27.—(P)—Official Chicago was shocked today by news of the death of the state's most powerful representative in congress, Martin B. Madden, chairman of the appropriations committee.

The city council, over which he once presided, adopted appropriate resolutions and, out of respect to Mr. Madden, adjourned until Monday.

The city hall will be closed the day of his funeral at Hinsdale, a suburb, and the entire council and city department heads will attend. Flags on all municipal buildings were at half mast.

BODY OF BENNETT RESTS WITH HEROES

sidewalks noting its significance. But at the old gateway through which so many names stand high in American history have passed to their place of last honor in Arlington, the drenched column, the band and a little group of commissioned fliers who were in yellow students with Bennett and who flew from Hampton Roads to Washington to pay him a comradely farewell, waited to take over the final rites for the dead.

The half-mile march to the graveside was made with the rain beating down and a cold wind tugging at the dripping colors. Over the casket, as it was transferred from hearse to an army gun caisson with army comrades checking the cold, restless six-horse team, a sudden flash was spread. Behind came the cars that bore Admiral Hughes, chief of naval operations, Assistant Secretary Warner, representing Secretary Wilbur, diplomats and government dignitaries. Just before that, Secretary Hoover made his way to stand near the grave throughout the brief ceremony, and the air of the church of the British and Spanish embassies also defied the storm to pay their respects.

Lies Near Peary. At the grave, simple rites for the dead were pronounced by the Rev. L. E. Smith, of Norfolk, Va., pastor of the church of which the dead aviator was a member. With him was Senior Chaplain Dickens, of the navy.

There was little room under the dipping khaki tent fly for even the nearest of kin of the dead or the high officials who had come. Many stood outside in the fast increasing down-pour, hats off under the deluge, throughout the ceremony. The voices of the clergy were audible hardly ten feet away.

The escort of bluejackets, with water dripping from their round flat caps, had moved around to line up in the hillside below the grave under trees that are just breaking out in green. Over the grave itself a single tree spread its branches almost reaching to the near-by monument that covers Admiral Robert E. Peary's first to win his way to the north pole.

Behind the clergymen stood the widow, drooping on the arm of a naval officer. The latter's service was completed. Over the casket the great flag that had draped it still was bidding the coffin itself to the last, held by the officer's hands. The flag that had borne the heavy weight to its place.

Back with the mourners stood one man who was saying goodbye to a comrade into whose hands many a time he had trusted his life and all his hopes. It was Commander Byrd, air conqueror of the pole. He had counted on Bennett in the new venture to the antarctic he is preparing and dropped everything to rush to Quebec when word reached that that his companion in the northern dash had been stricken. Byrd was almost the last at the grave.

A muttered command down the hillside brought the escort to "present" when the last prayer was said. A moment later, breech blocks rattled, then the sharp blast of the rifles rang out. Three times they barked beneath the dripping trees, then the bugle lifted the slow notes of the old soldier and sailor lullaby and the bugle notes of the air explorer, loyal comrade and ranked with the bravest of the brave, was left alone amid the company of admirals and generals who were close about this humbly placed hero of peace.

At the last and as the shivering, drenched hundreds who had clung to their places to the end, were struggling forward to waiting cars, the widow bent forward to lay her own tribute of flowers on the grave. Then she turned and, to the arm of an explorer officer escort, made her way to the machine that bore her swiftly away.

SCHOOL FIELD EVENTS HALTED BY DOWNPOUR

Despite unfavorable weather conditions more than 2,500 students of the Fulton county school system were participating in the second annual picnic, field day and athletic events of the system at Lakewood park Friday morning when a heavy downpour of rain shortly after 11 o'clock necessitated a halt in the festivities and caused a postponement until a later date.

R. L. Ramsey, supervisor of elementary schools, stated Friday night that almost half of the track events had been run off as per schedule when the rain started. According to present plans the remaining events on the program will be run off probably Saturday morning, May 12.

The athletic program at Lakewood is one of the outstanding events of the Fulton county school system during the year and officials in charge of the program were very much pleased with the large attendance Friday.

HEALING SERVICES OF DR. A. G. GARR CLOSE FIRST WEEK

Closing the first week of the scheduled eight weeks' "healing service" Friday night, Dr. A. G. Garr, world-wide revivalist, delivered a strong and stirring sermon before a large congregation.

"God put us here that we might better the world and ourselves," he said. "Are we doing it? The life of a Christian is smooth and he is happy in God. Then why not confess your sins before God and lead this beautiful life?"

This revival is being held at the corner of Courtland and Gilmer streets in a large tent which Dr. Garr has erected for this purpose, and is attracting hundreds. There is one service daily at 7:45 o'clock each night. On Sunday there are two meetings, at 3 o'clock in the afternoon and at the regular service time at night. Mrs. Garr is presiding at the piano during the revival.

YOUTH FORUM LAUDS THEATER'S INFLUENCE

"Though some shows are bad, the theater is, on the whole, a force for good," affirmed several speakers at the Atlanta Youth Forum, Friday night. They declared that all theatrical productions should not be condemned because of an occasional inferior drama. Several also discussed the little theater movement in America, declaring it to be of great practical value. The speakers were Miss Frances Wheeler and W. A. Green, Paul O'Neal, J. T. Vass and J. W. GEORGIA POTATO RESEMBLING DUCK REACHES ATLANTA

"Wanna buy a duck?" That plaintive query of a comedian who appeared recently on a local stage, might be repeated if he could see a sweet potato, brought Friday to The Constitution by Georgia Foxworth, which resembles a duck so nearly that one might easily believe in reincarnation. The potato was raised in south Georgia. Two cabbages, weighing 6 1/2 pounds and 7 1/2 pounds were exhibited by James Green, who said he raised them on his truck farm near Dawson. Green said cabbages in his section frequently grew as large as 15 pounds.

ASHLEY APPROVES NEW PARKING LAW

Acting Mayor Claude Ashley Friday approved Atlanta's latest amended traffic ordinance which limits parking in the central business area to 30 minutes and at the same time signed resolutions awarding the contracts for erection of five elementary schools to the Joe Stout company, of Sanford, N. C.

The new parking laws prohibit parking in the business district from 7 a. m. until 9:30 a. m. and from 3:30 p. m. until 6:30 p. m. and permit half-hour parking in the intervening time. This, it is said, will clear the streets during the rush hours and will permit shoppers to use automobiles to reach stores during the day.

Streets affected by the ordinance are Peachtree and Whitehall, from Baker to Trinity avenue. Broad, from Peachtree to Trinity. Forsyth, from Peachtree to Trinity. Mitchell, from Forsyth to Washington. Hunter, from Forsyth to Washington. Walton, from Spring to Peachtree. Edgewood, from Peachtree to Courtland. Auburn, from Peachtree to Courtland. Houston, from Peachtree to Courtland. Decatur, from Peachtree to Courtland. Ivy, from Decatur to Peachtree. Pryor, from Decatur to Auburn. West side Pryor, from Auburn to Houston. Carnegie Way, from Peachtree to Cain.

Alderman Robert E. Gann, of the sixth ward, formally withdrew an objection to the contract which he filed Wednesday after the aldermanic board had passed the contract award for the schools with Mr. Gann as the only member opposing it. Mr. Gann declared in a letter addressed to Mr. Ashley that he is satisfied that the wage scale which the company filed with its bid is for the best interests of Atlanta labor, and, that he, therefore, will no longer oppose it.

Mr. Gann's action permits immediate start on new schools for Grant park, Morningside, Haygood State, Whiteford and Edgewood avenue.

Formal contracts will be signed as soon as City Attorney James L. Mayson can prepare the papers and work is expected to begin next week. Work on new units for Bass, Brown and O'Keefe junior high schools will begin Monday, it was learned after Mr. Mayson had completed preparation of formal contracts for these structures. This will assure immediate start on more than $1,000,000 worth of new school projects next week.

$462,520 ROAD FUNDS GO TO COUNTIES TODAY

Checks totaling $462,520.83 and representing the first quarterly payment for 1928 from the state fuel oil tax will be mailed to Georgia counties today, the funds being intended for highway purposes, officials of the state treasury announced Friday.

The payment totaled considerably less than the last one, which went out on January 20 and covered the last quarter of 1927, officials said, the amount at that time being $523,732.57. The decrease was attributed to declining returns from the fuel oil tax during the winter months.

Of the four-cent state tax on gasoline one cent goes to counties for highway work; two and one-half cents goes to the state highway department, and the remaining one-half cent to the equalization fund for schools. The road funds to counties are apportioned on the basis of total mileage of the state aid system in each county.

BARLEY MALT SYRUP HAS WIDESPREAD USE

Barley-malt syrup, or malt extract as it is sometimes called, is not a new product. It has been used in various ways for more than 50 years. As new uses have been found from time to time, the consumption has been increased and large factories have been built for the manufacture of malt syrup exclusively.

As a food, barley-malt syrup was not appreciated for a long time. Its valuable properties, however, were taken advantage of by certain now famous breakfast food manufacturers. Its addition to their products enabled them to make an improved food, both as to flavor and palatability. The success of these malt syrup products was so phenomenal that today the majority of the popular breakfast foods have barley-malt syrup as one of their main constituents.

Experiments were made with other food commodities in order to utilize its valuable qualities. The baking industry, for instance, found it especially suitable for their business. Its use in the bread formula resulted in a quicker fermentation, larger loaves with velvety texture, rich brown crust and improved appearance of the finished loaf. The candy industry, too, found malt syrup useful in improving the food value and digestibility of its products.

Malted milk preparations served at the soda fountains owe their popularity to barley-malt syrup, because of the pleasant reaction of taste and flavor and also the additional food value.

Ice cream manufacturers use barley-malt syrup in great quantities because experiments proved that its use greatly added to the food value, taste and flavor of their product.

Physicians have long recognized the beneficial results of barley-malt syrup when prescribing for their patients. The nutritious properties contained in barley-malt syrup combined with the ease of assimilation are factors which determine its usefulness as a body builder.

For some food uses plain barley-malt syrup, or extract, is preferred. While for others the addition of some flavor is desirable. Chocolate, for instance, as shown by the large consumption of chocolate malted drinks.

Vanilla also serves to produce an agreeable combination. Another blend which has found considerable favor with the public is a combination of hops with barley-malt syrup. The latter gives barley-malt syrup a unique bitter flavor if properly blended.

The great demand for this ideal product by bakers and housewives for bakery and food products would indicate that hop flavored barley-malt syrup has met with great favor where palatability and wholesome foods are desired.

M'GAUGHY TO RETIRE FROM ATLANTA TRUST

The resignation of Snowden McGaughy from the Atlanta Trust company, where he has been senior vice president for nine years, will become effective today according to announcement Friday.

Mr. McGaughy tendered his resignation to the board of directors 30 days ago, it was stated. Expecting to continue in business activities in this city, Mr. McGaughy will make a formal announcement of his plans at a future date. He is one of the outstanding business figures of Atlanta and is widely known in financial circles throughout the section.

His retirement from the Atlanta Trust company will not take him from Atlanta, his plans for the future indicate.

Mr. McGaughy began his financial career in Alabama, where his steady rise and demonstrated ability resulted in his selection by the United States treasury department as a national bank examiner.

Later he was elected cashier of the Pacific bank, of New York city, which has since merged with the American Exchange National bank. His service in that capacity won for him recognition from the Atlanta Trust company. His career with the latter concern is well known.

Election of a successor to the retiring vice president has not yet been announced by the Atlanta Trust company.

2 YOUTHS INDICTED IN STABBING DEATH

John Henry Cowden, 17, and Harold Whiteside, 15, were jointly indicted Friday by the Fulton grand jury for the murder of Frank Wilson, 20, who was stabbed to death in a downtown theater Wednesday night during an altercation in the rest room.

The victim bled to death shortly after the fight, in which he received cuts about the abdomen. Young Whiteside is being held at the juvenile detention home, while Cowden is a fugitive, the solicitor's office says.

According to information furnished investigators, Whiteside gave the knife to Cowden, who is alleged to have wielded the implement with fatal effect.

RAINFALL GREET'S FESTIVAL OF ROSES AT THOMASVILLE

Thomasville, Ga., April 27.—(AP)—The seventh annual Thomasville rose show, which opened today according to schedule, will be continued through Saturday in order that the thousands of visitors who were unable to attend because of inclement weather may have an opportunity of viewing the beautiful display and of driving through the estate of wealthy tourists.

Despite a heavy downpour that started at 4 o'clock this morning and continued until almost noon, a large number of visitors came from all parts of Georgia, Florida, Alabama and other states, by train and automobile, to inspect the show. The estates were not open today, but will be thrown open tomorrow.

The show this year is considered to be the most pretentious ever held.

FORESTRY EXPERIMENT STATION HEAD HERE

E. I. Demmon, acting director of the Southern Forest Experiment station, at New Orleans, was in Atlanta for a short visit Friday, on his way back to New Orleans after having visited South Carolina, where he made a study of methods of handling turpentine and forest fires in that state. While here, Mr. Demmon paid a visit to the forestry department in the state capital.

Although Mr. Demmon said that his visit had no connection with national forestry week, now being observed, and which, he stated, is showing gratifying results.

SHOWS HEALTHY CONDITION.

On the whole the country is prosperous. But it is unmistakable that this prosperity is spotted, another, perhaps, piles up losses.

The south is the most prosperous section of the nation, except in thriving industrial zones here and there.

The last federal reserve board's condition statement of 645 reporting banks in leading cities shows increases for the week of $27,000,000 in investments, of $4,000,000 in loans and discounts and of $17,000,000 in time deposits and decreases of $15,000,000 in net demand deposits and of $66,000,000 in government deposits.

Loans on stocks and bonds, including United States government obligations, were $45,000,000 above the April 11 total at all reporting banks, increases of $48,000,000 being shown for the New York district and of $7,000,000 for the San Francisco district and a decline of $7,000,000 for the Boston district.

"All other" loans and discounts declined $42,000,000 at all reporting banks and $29,000,000 in the New York district and increased $6,000,000 in the Boston district.

Holdings of United States government securities, which at all reporting banks were $21,000,000 above the April 11 total, increased $14,000,000 and $7,000,000, respectively, in the Boston and Chicago districts. Holdings of other bonds, stocks and securities were $6,000,000 above the April 11 total.

Net demand deposits increased $21,000,000 in the New York district and declined $10,000,000 in the St. Louis district, $8,000,000 each in the Kansas City and Chicago districts and $15,000,000 at all reporting banks. Time deposits were $17,000,000 higher than the week before at all reporting banks and $9,000,000 higher at reporting banks in the New York district.

Government deposits declined in all districts, the total decline being $66,000,000.

A reduction of $54,000,000 in borrowings at the New York bank and of $7,000,000 each at the Philadelphia and Cleveland banks was offset by increases of $15,000,000 at San Francisco, $14,000,000 each at St. Louis and Atlanta, $10,000,000 at Boston and $15,000,000 at the other reserve banks.

PLANNING ADJOURNMENT.

Congress is even now preparing to adjourn. The senate republican steering committee has fixed May 13 as the tentative date. A few days ago the hope was expressed that the session would end on May 19. The difference is only four days, but it illustrates the anxiety of senators to get away from the capital as early as possible. They are anxious to spend some time in their home states or in national campaigning before the opening of the national conventions.

In the meantime the "speed up" program has failed of practical results. Tax reduction, flood control, farm relief, merchant marine and many other urgent measures are still pending.

Veto messages are threatened on the McNary-Haugen bill, and the Jones flood relief bill. This will call for further delays, or for complete failures in a last minute jam. The senate adjournment plans may not materialize, but at best, with the republican convention to meet early in June, the present session is on its last and most desperate stretch.

SHOW THEM ATLANTA!

The Constitution has already extended a cordial welcome to the thousands of visiting Shriners and their families who are stopping in Atlanta en route to Miami, where the national convention will be held.

The warmth of that welcome is repeated, and in the connection we urge the citizens of Atlanta, whether members of that ancient and noble order or not, to cooperate in the entertainment of the guests.

This can be made especially effective if the owners of automobiles will join in helping to "show the visitors the city," and the points of interest in and around Atlanta, the beautiful residential sections, the air port, and so on.

Let us show the visitors Atlanta! They are on pilgrimage to one of the great resort cities of the lower Atlantic coast, but Atlanta is the great business, economic, educational and cultural metropolis of the southeast, and we want every visitor to see Atlanta and her wonderful attractions.

GREAT RAYON DEVELOPMENT.

Late news dispatches tell of a great rayon plant to be built at Rome, Georgia. The cost, it is said, will be $10,000,000.

This plant, financed by American capital, will utilize processes invented in Italy, and Italian financiers and scientists have already arrived in America in connection with the construction of this great new industry.

It will be a distinctive addition to the textile manufacturing interests of this state, which have increased at a greater rate during the past three or four years than in any state in the south.

The current Manufacturer's Record calls editorial attention to the significant trends in southern industry, pointing out specifically the marvelous development of the rayon industry.

It points out that through purchase or construction there have been established in the south in the past four years more than 80 textile mills, under the ownership or control of New England or eastern mill interests, in addition to many mills built by southern interests and the enlargement of existing mills.

Connected with this rapid advance in the cotton mill industry there has been a remarkable development in the way of establishment of rayon plants involving an investment of over $100,000,000.

Work is now under way on a new unit for the American Bemberg corporation at Elizabethton, Tenn., and construction is in progress on a new plant at the same place for the American Glanzstoff corporation. These two plants represent the beginning of a proposed investment which is claimed to be about $50,000,000.

The Celanese Corporation of America with its plant located near Cumberland, Md., is spending $50,000,000 on improvements. The DuPont Rayon company's plant at Nashville, Tenn., is making extensive additions, and the DuPont interests have purchased a large tract of land at Richmond for building a rayon plant at a cost of about $10,000,000. The Industrial Rayon corporation of Cleveland, Ohio, is preparing to build a plant at Covington, Va., at a cost of $10,000,000, and a number of other rayon enterprises have been established in the south, which are now to be followed by the plant to be erected at Rome.

THE WORLD'S WINDOW

BY PIERRE VAN PAASSEN

Lapin Agile.

The Lapin Agile is up for sale. It was a little out-of-the-way tavern on the Montmartre hill, a tavern of old disreputable associations even when frequented by Yankee tourists reveling in freedom from the Volstead act. In the old days before Clemenceau was mayor of Montmartre and the sacred hill had never dreamed of being a show place of stage bohemia, the Lapin Agile was a haunt of bad boys and later of those individuals, more picturesque than amiable, whom the Parisians called agaches. At a still later period the Lapin Agile became a resort of artists who could not sell their pictures and half-starved young poets and novelists who were still dreaming of masterpieces to come. Andre Gill had painted for the tavern an appropriate sign, a rabbit escaping, even as the expected dinner had so often escaped from the poet whose ode or villanelle had not yet found its niche. When the exodus of art took place from the Latin quarter to Montmartre many of those who have since made fame writers and artists, from Georges Courteline to Francis Carco, from Steinlen to Utrillo, knew the Lapin Agile and some have left within its walls or upon them the evidence of their talent and their inability to pay the score.

Duerer's Fourth Century.

"As for Duerer, assuredly affection bids us mourn for one who was the best of men, yet for one who may well hold him happy that he has made so good an end, and that God has taken him from the midst of this time of trouble and from greater troubles in store, lest he, that deserved to be held nothing but the best, should be compelled to behold the worst. Therefore, may he rest in peace with his fathers, Amen." So spoke Martin Luther at Albrecht Duerer's funeral 400 years ago. The words are now quoted all over Germany where the great engraver's death is being commemorated. Duerer was a great artist. None of the great Italian painters, not even Michelangelo, could have surpassed for sensitive expression the portrait by Duerer of his father. The artist did not glorify the old man, whom we know he respected deeply and loved much. He painted him with insight and admirable taste. In contrast with many artists of his time he lived an admirable life which drew his friend Luther's praise.

Freak Candidates.

In a country like France where the number of political parties is legion and election expenses are very small, freak candidates are to be expected. At present the most original appears to be that of the proprietor of a cinema at Angoulême. He holds his election meetings in his picture house and instead of their costing him anything they bring in money for the audience pay for their seats and pay gladly for the joy of an extra number to the films, the fun consisting of hooting the candidate and roaring with laughter when he tries to command silence. Like that actor in the far west, who played Hamlet behind a wire curtain to protect him from the missiles, but pocketed the entrance money paid by the throwers, he may not get into the chamber, but the election may be worth his while nevertheless.

Odds & Ends of City Life

BY BILL SHIPPEN

Several of the day's most protuberant novelists are afflicted with acute sophistication, comparable, readers begin to believe, to a rather painful stomach ache.

Best-sellers often sound like the prolonged lament of a chronic depression. Why not agitate more soda-mint tablets for voluminous writers?

Try that slogan on your chamber of commerce. It might get big results. Suppose dictionary dictators were compelled to sing "Brighten the Corner" before sitting to diamond-studded typewriters.

This would react strongly for the Police Bureau, and perhaps release a few literary lights from gastric infirmities.

Under this treatment all the white-souled Babbitts would vanish from book stalls; in their stead would spring fictional heroes, square-jawed, virile and fair-haired heroes who never heard of repression.

And who, by the way, appointed you a critic?

In case you haven't read it in the paper, the Metropolitan opera, with a glittering galaxy of stars, is presenting its 18th annual season here.

Ready with the glittering galaxy, professor—right!

Prohibition Is Reviving and Paramounting the State's Rights Principle

Washington, April 27.—(Special.) Realization is soaking into the minds of the politicians of the country that the prohibition issue will be the plague of the oncoming presidential campaign. It cannot be detailed, dodged, deflected or denied.

If there are any dry democrats other than Senator Morris and Bill Uphaw left in the so-called "prohibition south" they will be holding up their hands!

Why, it is even boasted here at the capital that our mill sister, Mrs. Mary Harris Armour, although she is listed as a delegate at large from Georgia to the Houston convention, is going to sail for Europe on June 23, three days before the convention meets in Texas, to attend a temperance power over in Switzerland. I do not know whether that report is reliable, but I do know that it is being passed around here as a piece of news.

The fact appears to be that there is no organization of dry sentiment and fighting forces. The wets of the party are expected to dominate the convention and they may go so far as to commit the party to a declaration that the Volstead law must be revised and liberalized!

The Democratic Program.

It is given to be understood by all concerned that the democrats favorable to prohibition are in a minority. The nomination of Governor Smith will insist that he shall base his candidacy upon a demand for a reconstruction of the whole prohibition policy of the nation.

The New York World, which preaches for Smith, is any one who has pulled the throttle wide-open on this prohibition stuff and tells the cock-eyed democracy that "that is the issue he represents." This is the only issue on which he can really challenge the republicans. On every other question he will find his own followers divided or more or less apathetic.

Ant it the truth? The democrats and republicans have no great divisive issue to fight over. So the World and millions of the people at large realize the real "iron" upon which they should stage the impending battle.

The republican leaders do not fancy the "iron" of the real "iron" of making prohibition the dominant issue between the parties.

On Monday the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment organized a formidable directorate, embodying the most eminent names in the nation, representing employers of 2,000,000 workers as well as the treasury of $40,000,000, to direct a nationwide crusade against the policy of prohibition.

An Anchor to Windward. The big majority of that association are fighting, financing republicans. They are not republicans in the Kansas City republican national convention from adopting any bone-dry prohibition plank, as Borah demands, but from nominating a radically dry candidate for the presidency.

In other words, this is the intense unofficial effort to keep the millions of wet republican voters from deserting the party and stampeding to the Smith ticket, which they are sure will be named by the democrats at Houston.

I talked intimately with one of the principals of the association while he was here in this month last week. He said that his associates are well convinced that Smith can win over any bone-dry republican who could be opposed to him.

We would feel differently—have no fears, in fact—if the southern people would stick to their prohibition sentiments and repudiate a Smith ticket; but we have thoroughly canvassed that angle of the field and we know that the south will stand for Smith. So we must fight him in the east and west, and to do that with any hope of success we must keep the republican party free from any absolute commitment to prohibition!

The Slogan of State Rights. The leading slogan of the authorities of the Smith camp is the slogan of Smith is to be the recovery and reestablishment of state rights. He will soon be telling us that the public problems of the day and will ground them almost wholly upon the Jeffersonian-democratic principle of keeping separate and distinct the spheres of national and the reserved state powers of our dual form of government. He will, it is said, apply that principle to all phases of local self-government, to just program of legislation and administration.

The ranks of the republican party are now being divided more on the issue of state rights. The recent utterances of President Coolidge have reflected strongly the feeling growing in many quarters that the federal government is too far and that there should be a return from nationalization and bureaucracy to the original and safer basis of local self-government in its fullest implications.

Unless the republican convention promulgates a program of state rights, the probability that great numbers of constitutional republicans would vote for a democrat standing upon a state rights platform.

Handling People at Hotels

BY FRED C. KELLY

Store imagination is required in conducting a successful hotel than in almost any other line of business. Most people seem to exhibit a greater variety of traits and characteristics at a hotel than elsewhere. In the first place, they desire to live better at a hotel, in many respects, and have more done for them, than they would at home. The one with the "bitch" is buying, not only food and lodging, but service, and there is likely to be a variety of interpretations among guests as to what really good service is.

A man at a hotel alone does not behave like a man who is accompanied by his wife. The one with the wife along appears to be more complaisant, and more difficult to please. This is largely because the wife, being more susceptible to the hotel staff, is more likely to be a source of trouble and annoyance. The hotel staff, knowing more about the little details of good housekeeping, may notice things that the man, even though he has no opinion of being in the company of any woman in particular, nevertheless prefers to be at a hotel where he sees women about him.

EVERYDAY QUESTIONS

BY DR. S. PARKES CADMAN.

Brooklyn, N. Y. We have had something of a row in our young people's society about a lot of hymns in the hymn book. One of the members calls a jiffing. This remark was resented, so we agreed to ask if you would give us a line on the hymns which are suitable for a Protestant church.

Good hymns are as suitable for any church, Protestant or Catholic, as for any other. The hymns which are a hindrance to religious culture, the best hymn in the world is the Hebrew Psalmist. You cannot be too familiar with the hymns. They are a final selection of previous selections, and at their best a peerless medium of thanksgiving, penitence, supplication, praise and love.

In the list of hymns writers the following authors and their compositions are deservedly prominent: 1. Cecil F. Alexander. 2. "The Green Hill Far Away." 3. "The Deum," an ancient and anonymous Latin hymn. 4. St. Bernard of Clairvaux. 5. John Thon Joy of Loving Hearts. 6. Henry Wadsworth Longfellow. 7. "Jerusalem the Golden." 8. Sir John Bowring. 9. "In the Cross of Christ." 10. Phillips Brooks. 11. "O Little Town of Bethlehem." 12. Thomas Moore's "Daisy Bell." 13. George Croly's "Spirit of God Descend Upon My Heart." 14. Frederick W. Faber's "O Paradise." 15. Washington Gladden's "O Master Let Me Walk With Thee." 16. Paul Gerhardt's "Give to the Winds Thy Sorrows." 17. "The Hymn of the Church." 18. Gregory the Great's "Morning Hymn." 19. Francis Ridley Havergal. 20. "The Art of Living." 21. "The Holy, Holy, Holy." 22. "The Lord of the World." 23. CUBAN ENVOY HITS
AMERICAN TARIFF

Houston, Texas, April 27.—(AP)—A threat of increased duties on shipments to Cuba was coupled with a demand for a lower American tariff on sugar and tobacco in a paper read for Dr. Crespo Ferrera, Cuban ambassador to the United States, at the Latin-American session of the national foreign trade convention here today.

After characterizing the existing American tariff on these products as a detriment to industrial progress in his country, Dr. Ferrera informed the convention that in his opinion heavier duties would be necessary "should there persist the hostile attitude of the whole world toward our sugar and tobacco."

"Painful though it may be," his statement continued, "it is a necessity to which we shall be subjected and which we dare to consider in the hope that we may be spared from taking such drastic action, which constitutes our only supreme remedy."

In contrast to the dissatisfaction with trade conditions expressed by the Cuban ambassador were the statements of Carlos G. Davila, ambassador from Chile and of Manuel Mayo Barrenchea, of Los Angeles, delegate of the Confederated Chambers of Commerce, of Mexico City.

relation as it scored the high mark of the present season. And it was a triumph for Marion Telva, who sang as she never before has sung before a southern audience. Miss Ponselle and Miss Telva in two duets produced some of the sweetest harmony ever heard here. Although there is simplicity of style in the score it was rarely beautiful in its emotional qualities. "Casta Diva" and "Heat Me, Norma" were two other outstanding numbers.

"Norma" Wins Praise.

This was perhaps the greatest emotional test Miss Ponselle ever stood and her magnificent sense of the dramatic coupled with her remarkable powers to express emotions made her ideally fitted for the role. People left the auditorium Friday night declaring that "Norma" as sung Friday night, was one of the biggest hits ever heard here.

There is a remarkably beautiful melody to the fourth act and two gorgeous choruses. One chorus number is spectacular as well as dramatic to the highest degree.

Miss Telva had some wonderful moments in "Norma," and this was a great opportunity for her to show Atlanta people just what a high place in artistry she has established for herself. Her rich contralto blended perfectly with the powerful soprano of Miss Ponselle and the tone of their voices is so near the same that sometimes it was hard to distinguish which was singing, although one is soprano and the other contralto.

Scenic Beauty Pleases.

The scenic beauty of "Norma" attracted widespread approval. The first scene was heavy and sombre, the second was picturesque, the third was impressive, but the fourth was a scenic masterpiece.

Two little Atlanta girls, Julian May and Jeanette Young, appeared in the opera, playing the parts of Norma's two children.

Both operas brought all-star casts and most of these singers were making their first appearance of the season in Atlanta. In "Norma," Miss Ponselle, dramatic soprano, was the only notable star who has already made an Atlanta appearance. This opera brought the debut in Atlanta of Frederick Jagel, the new tenor of the Metropolitan Opera company, with star parts also sung by Ezio Pinza, Marion Telva, Philine Falco, also making her Atlanta debut, and Giordano Patrineri. Vincenzo Bellezza conducted a perfect performance.

Reaches Supreme Heights.

Miss Ponselle, an artist that she is, rose to supreme heights in "Norma." It has been said that this pleasing opera has been placed in the background in recent years because no soprano with enough dramatic power in her voice could be found for the role. Miss Ponselle certainly supplies this deficiency and as long as she remains with the Metropolitan that organization need worry no longer on this score.

The Bellini opera assuredly makes superhuman calls on the soprano and Miss Ponselle responded with almost superhuman efforts. The evening was one big triumph for her and was perhaps one of the greatest she has ever scored in Atlanta. Miss Ponselle sang "Norma," the title role, while Mr. Jagel gave quite a convincing portrayal of "Pollione," a role which also taxed all the abilities of a tenor. The Jagel voice is rich and clear and there is a delightful spirit of youthful vigor in its tones. Mr. Pinza was magnificent as "Oroveso" while Miss Telva and Miss Falco sang superbly the roles of "Adalgisa" and "Clotilde," respectively. Mr. Patrineri sang the role of "Elvino" with excellent effect.

In "Die Walkure," the afternoon offering of the Wagnerian music at its best, the orchestra called into action more perhaps in this opera than in any other, certainly any of the present season's offerings. Mr. Bamboschek, conducting, gave a remarkable exhibition of the

Two Outstanding Operas Will Conclude Great Season Today

Atlanta's grand opera season will come to an end Saturday in the proverbial blaze of glory with two of the outstanding presentations of the season, both sung by all star casts. Saturday afternoon "Carmen" will be sung and Saturday night "La Boheme." The stars in the accompanying photographs are, upper row, left to right, Leon Rothier and Beniamino Gigli, who are in "La Boheme," Miss Florence Easton and Miss Grace Moore, who will sing the roles of "Carmen" and "Micaela" in Carmen. Bottom row, Lucrezia Bori, who sings in "La Boheme," and Giovanni Martinelli and Henriette Wakefield, who sing in "Carmen."

orchestral powers of his musicians. The crashing Wagner music, thrilling to the supreme degree, was played with marvelous attention to detail and to the finest possible polishing of the heavy but graceful score. Power fairly throbs throughout this music and it preserves all the traditions of the ancient German mythological legends upon which the opera is based.

Quintet of Stars.

There is a quintet of stars in "Die Walkure," who have wonderful roles. Walter Kirchhoff, great German tenor, certainly did the best singing he has ever done in Atlanta. This sterling artist singing "Siegmund" was in excellent voice and his is one of the strongest ever heard here. It requires strength and a robustness of tone to sing such a role and Mr. Kirchhoff assuredly rose to meet all demands. He was at his best in the scenes where he sees the sword, where he draws the spring night and where he draws his sword from the tree. His "Siegmund's Love Song" also was masterful.

Then Julia Claussen, an able interpreter of Wagner, as "Brünnhilde," was absolutely perfect. She has a voice of marvellous power and range and her shrieks in the Valkyrie's call were of such a blood-curdling nature as to send chills up and down the back. "Fly, Then Swiftly" was a masterpiece, while she reached dramatic heights in calling on the fire to protect her in act 3. Miss Claussen even surpassed her outstanding work of last season in "Lohengrin." Clarence Whitehill, Florence Easton and Pavel Ludikar were the three other outstanding stars of "Die Walkure." Mr. Whitehill as "Wotan" was an impressive figure and his mighty voice rumbled with dramatic fire. One number, particularly effective, was "Wotan's Farewell."

Easton Versatile Artist.

Miss Easton, one of the most versatile artists in the Metropolitan, who will sing "Carmen" Saturday, appeared in the role of Siegfried. Her rich soprano, which is tenderly sweet at all times, was heard clearly throughout her part of the score and it requires a voice of much strength to sing the crashing Wagner score.

Mr. Ludikar, another versatile artist, gave an appealing interpretation of "Hunding." His also is a voice of great strength and penetrating power while his acting was superb. Scenically "Die Walkure" is spec-

Opera Notes and Sidelights

BY PAUL STEVENSON.

Ability to sing 88 notes in grand opera has won for Florence Easton, soprano, the honor of being one of the most versatile singers who ever appeared with that organization. Miss Easton sings in three languages, German, Italian and English, and this versatility can readily be seen when it is recalled that she sang in "Carmen" Saturday afternoon after having sung a leading role in "Die Walkure," the Wagnerian opera, Friday afternoon.

In the leading role of "Madame Butterfly" Miss Easton has appeared more than 200 times, which is believed to be a record. She sang this role in Atlanta last season.

"Madame Butterfly" is one of the most difficult roles I have ever sung," Miss Easton said. "The makeup is difficult and it requires a lot of getting up and down on the knees."

As "Sieglinde" in "Die Walkure" Miss Easton takes a long, hard fall at the end of the second act and in playing some of these roles she requires the use of liniment at the end of the opera.

As "Carmen," Miss Easton has established herself firmly as one of the ablest sopranos ever to appear in this role. She will sing the role Saturday afternoon with a notable cast of co-workers which will include Martinelli, Grace Moore, Henriette Wakefield and Charlotte Ryan.

Three notable Alabama visitors arrived Friday to enjoy the last four operas. One of them is former Governor Thomas E. Kilby, of Anniston. The others are Harry M. Ayers, publisher of the Anniston Star and Hot Blast, and Tom Garner, director of the University of Alabama Glee club, of Tuscaloosa.

Mr. Ayers was accompanied by Mrs. Ayers, who is a well-known musician. Mrs. Ayers recently has headed a little theater movement, which has brought some excellent productions, one of which recently was presented at Birmingham.

Former Governor Kilby is known for his prison research work. The Kilby prison, of Alabama, is one of the best-equipped in the entire country.

Mr. Garner has kept the University of Alabama Glee club in the forefront of southern musical activities for (acular in the extreme. The settings are heavy and massive while there are some startling electrical effects. The effects used during the battle between Wotan and Siegmund were marvelous.

The one outstanding thrill of this opera, however, came at the beginning of the third act, when the glorious number "The Ride of the Valkyries" was sung. This number was by Misses Charlotte Ryan, Dorthea Plezer and its weird effect brought thrills of pleasure to the audience. In a minor role, Marion Telva also acted and sang with rare finish.

Saturday the climax of the season will come when "Carmen" is sung in the afternoon and "La Boheme" in the evening. It is rather a coincidence that the four women singing in "Carmen" are Americans. The title role will be sung by Miss Easton. Miss Grace Moore will sing "Micaela," making her Atlanta debut. Henriette Wakefield will sing "Mercedes" while Charlotte Ryan will sing "Frasquita." Giovanni Martinelli will sing the leading tenor role with Lawrence Tibbett as the baritone.

"La Boheme" will bring that great quartette, Gigli, Bori, Rothier and the veteran Scotti, making his first appearance here this season.

"La Boheme" are two of the best in the Metropolitan's repertoire, and with such notable casts it is expected that two big crowds will turn out," Mr. Atkinson said.

The sudden flare of cold weather did not affect the enthusiasm of the audience at "Die Walkure" Friday afternoon. The building was rather chilly and many people shivered through the opera, but they were highly enthusiastic over its artistic success nevertheless.

The woman who cut corners with health

For a long time she had gotten by. Living on shoe-string energy. Cutting corners with health. But now she was paying. Now, the least little thing tired her completely out. Enthusiasm, fun, play—they were almost total strangers.

And every mirror mocked her to her face.

What a tragedy that so many people fail to realize the trouble constipation can cause—but let it go on neglected, doing its deadly work. Constipation saps vital strength. Thieves youth. Mars beauty. Throbbing heads and aching backs, dragging feet and lusterless eyes, are its fruits—and it frequently leads to serious disease in the end.

And the pity is that, all the while, it is so easy to relieve. So simple to prevent. Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is guaranteed to bring prompt relief. Pleasant, safe prevention!

ALL-BRAN is effective and natural Bulk or roughage relieves constipation in a natural way. Kellogg's ALL-BRAN furnishes bulk in generous quantity because it is 100% bran. This bulk carries moisture throughout the digestive system—gently exercising the intestines, sweeping out poisonous wastes. Part-bran products seldom contain sufficient bulk to be completely effective. Doctors recommend ALL-BRAN. Because it is 100% bran and accomplishes 100% results.

So much better than harsh drugs

ALL-BRAN brings lasting relief. Far better than habit-forming pills and laxatives whose dose must be constantly increased and which are only temporarily effective. An appetizing cereal food. ALL-BRAN is delicious with milk or cream—with fruits or honey added. Soaking a few moments in the milk brings out all its nutlike flavor. Mix it with other cereals too. Sprinkle into soups. Use it in many kinds of cookery. Eat two tablespoonfuls daily—chronic cases, with every meal.

But be sure you have genuine Kellogg's—the original ALL-BRAN. Don't take chances with part-bran substitutes, which, at best, can be but partially effective. ALL-BRAN is sold by all grocers. Served at hotels, restaurants. On diners. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

Guaranteed!
Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is sold with this definite guarantee: Eat it according to directions. If it does not relieve constipation safely, we will refund the purchase price.

THE
BY LOYD A. WILHOIT

The current season of opera, which comes to a brilliant climax today, has subjected Atlanta's numerous golf courses to a severe strain during the past week. Many visitors have taken advantage of the opportunity to play on Atlanta greens between opera performances. Herewith East Lake club is presented a picture by Kenneth Rogers, Constitution staff photographer, of one of the fair golf enthusiasts on the course. Her caddy is standing in the rear.

"I shall go home and tell grandma I played on the same course that Bobby Jones uses," this beautiful out-of-town visitor from Hapeville exclaimed.

ARE WOMEN BECOMING MORE FLIRTATIOUS?

This column likes to struggle with abstruse problems affecting the great fundamentals of life. What do you think about today's question? Our staff artist heard about it and went out to do some sketching. At Friday night's opera he drew this sensational scene at one of the tables in the Metropolitan where all the be-jeweled ladies and stiff-shirted gentlemen sip soda pop between acts.

Concentrate on this shameful picture. Note how the young woman is casting down her eyes and hiding behind her fan. Deliberately vomiting the poor sinner across the table. Yes," declared our staff artist, "women positively are getting more flirtatious—thank goodness!"

NOW PUZZLE OVER THIS ONE.

Here's a new "What-Would-You-Do?" problem that simply must be disposed of:
A bald-headed gent was sitting next to a high-brow lady at Friday afternoon's opera. He kept raving about the beauty of the music.

"Henceforth," he finally said, "my favorite opera shall be 'Norma.'"

Whereupon the high-brow lady admitted that she entertained a fondness for the title. Our staff artist made this engaging sketch of two 1928 model bathing beauties at the Y. W. C. A. pool. Not until after the picture had been turned over to the engraving department did the editor of this column notice that the artist had carelessly thrown in a few sea gulls. Oh, well; what difference do a few sea gulls make between friends?

Though it's hard to believe, the Metropolitan Opera company property master brought a big rock all the way from New York to be used in a scene of "Die Walkure" Friday afternoon. By not tendering the use of Stone Mountain for the occasion, the memorial association lost a chance to get some desirable publicity.

CUR STAFF ARTIST HAS ARTISTIC IMPULSE.

In a moment of weakness—probably caused by the strain of attending two operas on the same day—our staff artist last night attempted to draw a picture. Guided by the spirit of the music festival week, he called it: "Portrait of a Lady Behind the Sight Line." What are we bid for it?

PLAN TO "FORGET" YOUR ICE BOX
When You Build Your New Home

A finished outside icing arrangement is shown below. It costs only a few dollars more to include it in your home, when the building is under construction.

The modern method of outside icing permits the housewife to forget all about her ice box, ice refrigeration expert. Yet it safeguards the family food budget by being always on the job.

IN planning and building that new home of yours, or in selecting a new apartment, be sure to demand the convenience of outside icing," advises Dr. Martha Manning, home refrigeration expert. This new method of placing ice directly into the ice chamber from a door that opens on the outside of the building brings with it a host of little conveniences and comforts to the housewife who requires her architect or builder to include it in the plans. The additional cost, while the house is under construction, is almost negligible, while the many conveniences it brings result directly in the turning of worktime into playtime, and helping along the family food budget.

The woman who thoughtfully arranges for this system becomes a business executive in her home. She need only issue an order to the City Ice Delivery Co., to keep her ice box well filled and it becomes the ice man's duty instead of hers. The housewife can proceed to forget all about her refrigerator except to pay her bill from month to month, and to give it a quick cleaning occasionally. Yet she will have the comfort, and the convenience of automatically keeping the foodstuffs in the refrigerator at a safe, low, constant temperature, which is absolutely necessary if the foods are to be safely guarded from dangers of bacteria growth.

Ice, of course, is the natural, sure and economical refrigerant. It costs only a few cents per day, and involves no machinery whatever to maintain and keep in repair. Ice refrigeration is automatic and has the distinct advantage of purifying as well as keeping food cool. The circulating air about the ice cake and through the food chambers keeps the food constantly fresh, by taking all the odors and impurities to the ice film and down the drain. With the outside icing system, this modern, safe, healthful, sure system of preserving foodstuffs becomes as automatic as the reading of your gas or electric meter in the basement.

Many modern homes and apartments are including the outside icing arrangement, but be sure to check up this feature if you are building a new home. It results in saving thought, time and money.

Modern homes already completed may be equipped with the outside icing arrangement, but there is a worthwhile saving in having the opening in the wall made when the building goes up. Plans for outside icing for houses in construction, or those already built, may be had from the City Ice Delivery Company, who carry a full line of Ice King, made by Leonard and Bohm, Refrigerators.

Railway Consolidation Near LOCREE'S ACTION MAKES MOVE POSSIBLENew York, April 27.—(AP)—Surrendering his holdings in the Washington and Annapolis railroads, Leonor
F. Loree has cleared the decks for a final agreement on eastern railway consolidation involving 50,000 miles of track and property worth billions of dollars.Loree yesterday relinquished his dream of a fifth trunk line between the east and west and sold his stock in the Washington and Annapolis to the Pennsylvania railroad for $20,000,000.The deal was closed after weeks of bargaining by Loree, W. W. Atterbury, head of the Pennsylvania, and other railroad interests. The amount of Loree's holdings was not disclosed.The sale was for cash and free of all encumbrances. It leaves Loree a free hand in the disposition of his Delaware and Hudson, of which he is president, and which he may keep or throw into any merger he sees fit.Consummation of the deal followed closely upon the disclosure that Otto H. Kahn, banker, had intervened in a deadlock which threatened when Loree refused to give up his fifth trunk line scheme.Its sequel may be a contest for territory between the now strongly entrenched Pennsylvania and the new lines. The Baltimore and Ohio, and it is believed in some quarters, may now acquire the Washington and Annapolis, since the friendly relations between the two roads.With Loree out of the picture after three years in which he balked at selling his stock, the consolidation of railroad circles that the Pennsylvania, Baltimore and Ohio, New York Central and Nickel Plate will now go ahead with plans to amalgamate the eastern carriers into four groups.

Four-Day Atlantic Ship
UN SOUND AND NEBULOUS, SAYS REPORT
Service Project RejectedWashington, April 27.—(AP)—Technically open to criticism, economically unsound, and financially nebulous is the way the shipping board characterized the proposal of the Trans-Atlantic corporation to construct six high-speed liners for a four-day trans-Atlantic service.In an exhaustive report submitted to the senate the board recommended that the proposal be not accepted, but added that it made the decision and recommendation without prejudice to the recommendations which it has suggested in the past and may make in the future, urging the building up of the trans-Atlantic express, passenger and mail service on sound economic lines and is prepared to suggest to the senate how this can be accomplished.The report was submitted in response to a senate resolution. It said that the vessels would cost far more than the Trans-Oceanic corporation, which is headed by Lawrence R. Wilder, estimated, and that the total advance which the government would be called upon to make for the construction of the six ships would be $144,000,000.Following a three-day trial in the criminal court of Atlanta, Z. V. Lacy, of the Lamar Investment company, was freed by a jury of 12 men and 2 women with his alleged violation of the state law requiring professional lenders to take out licenses when dealing with the state's funds and charging more than 3-1/2 per cent interest a month.Approximately 20 similar cases will be brought to trial, beginning within the next two weeks, according to Solicitor Carlton W. Binn.The trial, said to be a test case, culminated a series of legal battles waged against the alleged usurious practices of salary buyers here.Attorneys Paul E. Kibler, Ben Conyers, C. E. Moore and R. J. Jackson, represented the defense, while Solicitor Binn and Attorneys Mark Bolling, Herman Heyman and J. L. R.
Bord, of the Legal Aid society, were state's counsel.A number of civic organizations have been aiding the prosecution on the ground that salary buyers are in effect usurious money lenders.The case decided Friday hinged on whether $15 received from the Lamar Investment company by Beverly, a negro laborer, was a purchase of salary by the investment company, or an illegal loan of money falling under the state law of 1920 which requires a license for lenders of small amounts.

No Salary to Assign.

Prosecutors contended that Beverly had no salary in prospect when he borrowed the money, that the negro laborer was not entitled to a loan, and that the company, in making the loan, asked for no information as to the applicant's employment.The defense argued a salary buyer was authorized under the law to purchase a man's wages, as they might pay for similar commodities of established value.Evidence at the trial brought out that the

Three Generations

By WARWICK DEEPIING

Old John Pybus, formerly a bookseller in London, is serving as a porter in an inn at Castle Craven when his son, Conrad, and his wife, Mrs. Pybus, arrive from both his sons since the beginning of the war and they have lost track of him. Conrad hastens to tell his brother, Probyn, that he has seen his father. Probyn would like Pybus to see his father, and offers to take care of him if the old man will give up his job. Old Pybus refuses. Lance goes secretly to see his grandfather.

INSTALLMENT XII.
LANCE REACHES A DECISION.
Lance sat down at the table with the air of a young man preparing to break some solemn fast.

"Tell me all about yourself, grandfather."

The Venerable's eyes laughed gently under the bushy white eyebrows.

"Once upon a time there was a little old fellow who kept a bookshop."

"So you did keep a bookshop?"

"For 30 years or so. What was the family tradition?"

"If you don't mind I'd rather not talk about it at present. The reality is so much better than the make-believe."

"Well, I kept a bookshop in London, and then another bookshop in a Dorsetshire town. Then we had the war as an interlude, and my books remained on the shelves. I ceased to be a bookseller and conducted a tram. I have been in this billet for about seven years."

Lance stirred his tea. His face had a clouded look.

"Didn't they know?"

"We had passed out of each other's lives."

"But was there no effort?"

"Your father did make an effort."

"I'm glad of that."

"But—he did not like my job. Quite natural. It did not inspire credit. Very kindly—he offered to pension me, to turn me into an old fellow pottering about a parade. But I did not see it—as he saw it."

"And you told him—?"

"I'm afraid I told him to go to hell."

Lance flushed up.

"Splendid! That's just like—these people—they always want you to do what suits them."

His grandfather gave him a shrewd look.

"You, too?"

"Yes. It has all been arranged. I'm to be a business man. I'm to be the expert specialist. Everything is taken for granted. I'm to be a little second edition of my father. Of course—I know—that he has never grumbled me anything. Parents don't, but when it comes to the crisis . . ."

"They grudge you the one big thing."

"And that?"

"The right to be yourself."

Old Pybus appeared to be counting the currants in one of the slices of cake.

"Yes, we are all guilty of that, more or less. We like to retain control. I let my boys go, but I kept the right of telling them what I thought."

"Did it do any good, grandfather?"

"Not a shred. It made them dislike me—a little worse. They meant to go their way, and I went mine. And you . . ."

Lance looked out of the window.

"My way's different, too. At least I think so. I want to be myself."

"They went out to feed the pigeons and, standing in the Saracen yard with his back to a big blue car that had come in for the night, John Pybus pointed with the stem of his pipe at Lance's little car."

"There won't be any of that, Lance."

"No, I suppose not, grandfather."

"Not to begin with. Books don't—as a rule—produce motor cars. But, of course, you have thought."

He looked with a courageous kindness into his grandson's serious face. He was being braver than Lance knew. It is so much pleasanter to utter comfortable words, and this new and human relationship had suddenly become precious to him.

"Criticism is one of the most difficult drugs to swallow. You'll be thinking me a platitudinous old devil."

Lance's smile came back.

"He—whom the Lord chastens—grandfather."

"You've got it. Don't we all want to wave flags and shout hooray. But I won't, my lad, to you."

"No, I don't think you cold."

"But can about hooray at the right moment. We are flesh and blood—remember. And then . . . Well, there's something to look at."

A long, white two-seater, a de luxe machine, had glided in through the archway. A very tall man, brown as to face and clothes, climbed out of it, and turned to smile in a particular way at a very decorative young woman in a velvet and fur coat.

"Puss staying on the cushion?"

She was a pretty thing with oblique dark eyes, and a slow sophisticated smile.

"Need I get out?"

"Need you do anything? Just going across to the gunsmith's, that's all. Snuggle up."

The Venerable, after looking admiringly at the little lady in the black and white chariot, glanced up at his grandson.

"Interested—in that sort of thing?"

Lance looked a little fierce. He was more interested—in that sort of thing—than his grandfather suspected.

"Yes, sometimes. It hasn't lasted long—yet."

"Expensive hobby in these days. Say you sell 1,500 copies of a novel. A hundred pounds, more or less, probably less. How far would that go? There is a sort of celibacy."

And suddenly he took his grandson by the arm.

"Let us go and look at the river. You haven't to pay to look at the river."

A moon as big and yellow as a harvest moon raised its face over Castle Craven, and the whiteness of the Venerable's head was like the sheen of a helmet. The shadows of the ash trees lay like the shadows of clouds upon the broken walls of the castle, and the castle field was a goblin ground pocketed with darkness between folds of silver. John Pybus had finished his supper. He had come out with a pipe and his own thoughts. He took the path to the swinging gate in the stone wall, and passing across the grass grown courtyard, climbed the three steps to one of the windows.

John Pybus, of course, was thinking of his grandson, for in Lance's own words the day had been a great occasion. And if it is possible for an old man to survive to flatter Lance's grandfather should have succumbed to it, but flattery floats on shallow water, and old Pybus was deep.

He had been touched. He could think of nothing but the grandson in the place of the father, Lance coming to help him with that luggage. What an ironical reversion to type! If Probyn—ought Probyn to know? But there was no spirit of malicious exultation in old Pybus. Did one gloat over the strange unexpectedness of human kinship, that sacred something in the blood?

Sir Probyn Pybus was a philatelist, but with Sir Probyn philately was rather the hobby of a man who had spent his life in acquiring material things, and who was nearing the end of his possibilities. Certainly he was the possessor of some very rare specimens, and he could say that he could show every stamp that had been issued by the republic of South America. His collection was insured for a considerable sum.

He had made a purchase of stamps that day from a dealer, and Lance looked in through the open French window of the library he saw his father seated at his desk, with one of his albums open before him. He was examining a stamp through a lense mounted on a silver handle.

He looked up with a bland, civic expression. It seem to him that his son's figure, set in the white frame of the window, looked taller than usual.

"Come in, Lance. Look at this Honduras. What do you think of it?"

Lance, moving to a position behind his father, looked at the stamp, and also at that patch of baldness on Sir Probyn's head.

"Nice issue. I want to talk about it—pater. It's—it's inevitable."

Sir Probyn placed the magnifying glass between the leaves of the stamp album. He rushed back his chair six inches. He was deliberate for deliberation seemed to be the right response to so flattering a word. Inevitable! Was anything inevitable save death and one's dinner? Had the boy got himself into some mess, an affair with a woman?

"What is the trouble? Sit down, Lance."

Lance remained standing behind his father's chair.

"There's no trouble, pater, but I don't want to go into business."

SOCIETY TURNS OUT EN MASSE FOR "DIE WALKURE" AND "NORMA"

FAVORITE OPERAS WILL BE SUNG AT TODAY'S PERFORMANCES

Matinee Audience Hears Wagner's Pleasing Opera

Wagner's compelling opera, "Die Walkure," was presented before a large matinee audience yesterday afternoon, its pleasing and melodious music written by the master composer to accompany the adventures of his mythical personages, its situations thrilling and pathetic by turn, were easily understood and approached by the listeners. "Bamboschek" conducted the musical score and the imposing cast singing the opera in German included Siegmund, Rudolph Laubenthal; Hunding, Pavel Ludikar; Wotan, Clarence Whitehill; Sieglinde, Florence Easton; Brunnhilde, Julia Claussen; Fricka, Marion Telva; Helmwig, Dorothea Mansk; Gerhilde, Charlotte Ryan; Ortlinde, Louise Lerch; Rosseweisse, Ina Bourskaya; Grimmerde, Ellen Dalossy; Waltraute, Henriette Wakefield; Siegrune, Elda Vettori, and Schwertleite, Dorothea Flexer.

Famous Love Song

Siegmund's "Love Song," the exquisite gem of the first act of the opera, rhapsodizes over spring and love, sung to the kneeling Sieglinde in the hut in the forest, the love scene revealing allegorical and poetical sense. The second act carried the listener into the wild and rocky pass, with Wotan and Brunnhilde entering into the opera, the famous "Battle Cry" rising in wonderful tones from the throat of Julia Claussen, as she prepared for her flight as the Valkyrie. Wagner pictured in his "Ride of the Valkyries" the warlike nature of the warrior maids, one of the most tremendous compositions in existence, the wild shouts of the goddesses riding winged steeds through the air to the rock being brought out in the last act. Wotan's "Farewell," with Clarence Whitehill, the renowned baritone, was superbly sung and acted, the role and score being familiar to the singer, who has often appeared in the production of "Die Walkure."

'Carmen' and 'Boheme' Close Eighteenth Opera Season

The brilliance and spontaneity of Georges Bizet's matchless opera, "Carmen," and the haunting sweetness and pathos of Puccini's "La Boheme" will delight music lovers Saturday afternoon and evening when the Metropolitan Grand Opera company presents the last two performances of the week at the city auditorium.

The appearance of Grace Moore, as Micaela, in "Carmen," which will be the afternoon performance, will be of wide interest, this marking the initial role enacted by this gifted Tennessee girl before an Atlanta audience. Carmen will be portrayed by Florence Easton, who, with her heavily fringed shawl and a rose in her hair, will defy even a brigadier, Giovanni Martinelli, as Don Jose, to be loyal to anything less than her charms. Others in the cast will be Lawrence Tibbett, Charlotte Ryan, Henrietta Wakefield, Mito Picco, Angelo Bada, Louis d'Angelo and G. Chayonovsky.

From the moment that Carmen and Don Jose meet outside the cigarette factory in the first scene, he becomes a victim of her wiles, letting her escape after imprisonment following a stabbing affray with another cigarette girl, deserting his post later to follow her into a resort of smugglers and gypsies, and finally, in the closing scene, stabbing her in jealousy of Escamillo, the toreador, his rival, for whose prowess, at the end, shouts of acclaim ring in his ears.

La Boheme, to be presented Saturday evening, brings to the fore stars who never fail to present the "summa bonum" of the arts: Beniamino Gigli, Mito Picco, Antonio Scotti, Lucrezia Bori, Leon Rothier, P. Malatesta, Paolo Ananian and Edith Fleischner. The melancholy which follows inevitably in the wake of the struggles of the poet, the painter, the musician and the philosopher, pervades the mellow, appealing opera, which is replete with some of the most enchanting melodies that ever found their way to a musical score. Music lovers have been offered the amazing opportunity of hearing five operas in two days with fifty of the Metropolitan artists, a full chorus and orchestra directed by famous conductors.

Miss Davis and Elmer Gibson Wed at Impressive Ceremony

Marked by impressive beauty was the marriage ceremony of Miss Jamie Louise Davis and Elmer Lyeth Gibson which was performed on Wednesday morning, April 25, at 11 o'clock by Reverend W. W. Menninger in the chapel of All Saints' Episcopal church, and attended only by the immediate families and a few close personal friends.

The chapel room was decorated with stately palms and cream colored gladioli and bows of white satin ribbon encircled the altar posts. At the conclusion of the impressive ceremony, the bride and groom knelt upon a beautiful white satin pillow.

The bride, dressed in a gown of brown zephyr, a handsome golden model of oxford gray with a small navy blue hat and a shoulder corsage of rose-pink roses and sweet peas. The groom was attended by George Holloway.

The beautiful bride wore her traveling costume, consisting of beige crepe and navy blue. The bride's gown was a simple, elegant design, and the groom's was a classic suit. The ceremony was a private affair, with only family and friends in attendance.

Mrs. Gibson is the younger daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Mitchell Davis, formerly of Atlanta, but who on account of Mr. Davis' ill health, have been making their home in Palm Beach, Fla., for the past two years. Mr. Davis is a member of Delta Sigma Phi fraternity.

Mrs. Branton Davies and Miss Gertrude Davies are attending the wedding celebration at Columbus. They are the guests of Mrs. Davis' father, F. B. Tondahl, and sister, Mrs. M. N. Daniel, of that city.

Kiser-Burnett Wedding Rites Solemnized at Home Ceremony

The marriage of Miss Nancy Winfrey Kiser and William Cox Burnett was solemnized Friday afternoon at 4 o'clock at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. M. C. Kiser, on Peachtree road in the presence of the immediate families and close friends.

The Rev. C. C. Kiser, of Thomson, Ga., uncle of the bride, performed the ceremony. Mrs. M. L. Hudson, pianist, and Herbert Callaway, violinist, rendered an appropriate musical program. During the ceremony "To a Wild Rose" was softly played. A profusion of cut flowers in large baskets were used as decorations throughout the reception rooms of the home.

The ceremony was performed in the living room before a bank of palms and ferns arranged before the tall mantel. Placed in relief against this massive mound of rich greenery were tall baskets of lilacs and white roses alternating with seven-branched candelabra with white burning tapers.

Wedding Attendants.
To the strains of the wedding march from "Lohengrin" Miss Mildred Morris and Miss Berta Lee Smith entered, carrying white satin ribbons which formed the aisle from the stairway to the altar. Miss Morris was wearing a pink taffeta and Miss Smith in white tulle. Their shoulder sprays were of pink roses and valley lilies.

Miss Charlotte Burnett, sister of the groom, acted as maid of honor; and was lovely in a gown of flesh tulle over a foundation of silver cloth. The waist was fashioned in a modish style with a full skirt. She wore a picture hat of pink, trimmed with a velvet bow and she carried a bouquet of pastel shaded flowers.

M. C. Kiser, Jr., acted as best man. The radiantly lovely bride descended the stairs alone, and was met by her father, M. C. Kiser, by whom she was given in marriage. She was being groomed in a modish ensemble of tan tulle, the blouse being made of a lighter shade and embroidered in the dark tones. A deep collar of summer ermine trimmed the coat. Completing her costume was a small hat to match, and she carried a bouquet of orchids and valley lilies. The only ornament worn by the bride was an exquisite bracelet set with diamonds and sapphires, a gift of the groom.

Reception Follows.
Immediately following the ceremony, an informal reception followed, at which time Mr. and Mrs. Kiser were assisted in entertaining by Mrs. B. H. Treadwell and Miss Ellen Kiser, aunts of the bride, and Miss Louise Crockett and Mrs. Lulu Brewer, of Elberton, Ga.

In the dining room, quantities of flowers in pastel shades were used, and punch was served from a bowl embedded in lilac and roses, which was presided over by Miss Katherine Davis and Miss Lorena Roberts.

Miss Evelyn Sims kept the bride's book.

Mrs. Kiser, mother of the bride, was wearing a beige crepe, combined with silk lace of the same shade and worn with a shoulder array of orchids and valley lilies.

Mrs. R. A. Burnett, mother of the groom, was wearing a blue crepe with shoulder spray of orchids and valley lilies.

Mrs. Treadwell's gown was of black lace, and Mrs. Kiser wore black and cream lace over blue satin.

Following the ceremony, Mr. Burnett and his bride left for a wedding journey to New Orleans, and upon their return to Atlanta in two weeks will be at home in the Lafayette apartments.

Ponselle's Singing Thrills Enthusiastic Audience

"Norma" was added Friday evening to the list of memorable presentations of the Metropolitan Opera company which have delighted Atlantans for eighteen seasons. As the great curtains rolled back those who have followed opera here from its incipency and those who experienced for the first time the pleasure of an opera performance realized that "Norma," by Vincenzo Bellini, is not only an opera of great power and beauty, a tragedy, which both in sentiment and diction contrasts strongly with the balderdash which is perhaps too often set to music, but that it offered unprecedented modes of expression to the inimitable Rosa Ponselle, who as the high priestess of the Temple of Eus, held her listeners spellbound by the force of her dramatic power.

A star has never quite reached the heights until she has proven her ability through the role of "Norma," it has often been said. This difficult lead of the classical presentation Friday evening made clear the real power and ability of this dramatic soprano. Through an unexcelled tonal volume and innate histrionic ability Ponselle held her listeners spellbound as she recreated this music and the atmosphere of this old classical production, "Casta Diva," the outstanding solo of the evening play, was rendered with exceptional appreciation of the innate beauty of the composition.

Although "Norma" has never before had a place on the Atlanta opera list, those who have seen Atlanta develop musically will remember that this delightful musical performance was presented in part, probably in concert form, by the Beethoven society, which was organized here in 1877.

In this Italian opera of the "grand style" the faithfulness of Polione, the Roman proconsul, impersonated by Frederick Jagel, whose voice was perfectly adapted to this role, was delightfully contrasted with the devotion of the high priestess who chose death upon the funeral pyre as a means of atonement for early sins. The roles of Oroveso, impersonated by Elio Pinza; Adalgisa, ably interpreted by Marion Telva; Clotilde, Philine Falco, and Flavio, Giordano Paltrinieri, completed the cast of an opera which though seldom performed found a place in the hearts of music lovers which was in direct proportion to the scarcity of its presentation.

The scenic beauty of the opera deserves mention. That subdued coloring which characterizes opera settings was heightened Friday evening by the exceptional scene of the sacred oak of Irminsul, shrine of the Druids, toward which in the darkness of night could be seen approaching the Gallic army, equipped with torches. Throughout the production offered every performance of grand opera sung at the auditorium by the Metropolitan Opera company.

STORY of the OPERA

"Carmen" and "La Boheme"

BY PAUL STEVENSON.

"CARMEN."
Bisetz's colorful opera, "Carmen," in four acts opens with the scene of the first act laid in the public square in Seville, after a prelude is played which is one of the most famous in all opera history and which outlines the theme of the work. When the curtain rises a crowd of cigarette girls, enjoying their noon hour, are shown in small groups chatting with men. Most of the girls surround Carmen, a beautiful cigarette girl who is apparently angry at Don Jose, a brigadier, who has shown indifference to her charms. The brigadier is dressed in a handsome brigadier's uniform. The soldier hears Carmen sing and becomes interested in her. At this point Escamillo, his betrothed, enters, bearing a letter from his mother. A pretty duet follows in which the love of the two is outlined as being something real.

Micela leaves and Don Jose is standing alone when the cigarette girls appear on the scene. An excited crowd gathers around Carmen, who has stabbed another cigarette girl. The officer of the guard places her under arrest and leaves her in the custody of Don Jose, the soldier. The girl then meets him at the Lilla Fastia inn. The soldier becomes infatuated with her and she cannot resist her beauty when she tells him she will meet him at the Lilla Fastia inn. The soldier becomes infatuated with her and she cannot resist her beauty when she tells him she will meet him at the Lilla Fastia inn.

Scene at Tavern.
The second act opens with a scene at a tavern in the suburbs of Seville frequented by a band of smugglers. Carmen is at this inn and while waiting for Don Jose she meets Escamillo, the famous toreador, around whom is centered some of the greatest music in the opera. The toreador sings to Carmen a fiery story of bull fighting and the effect on Carmen is noticeable, although she still strives to remain true to Don Jose. The voice of Don Jose is heard in the distance and Carmen and her friends agree that he would make a fine smuggler. Carmen then dances for Don Jose and completes her infatuation of the soldier. The soldier denounces her plans to marry Don Jose, and Carmen, who is now a smuggler, enters and orders the soldier away. Don Jose refuses to go and picks up a sash which he throws at him by Carmen and tries to kill him. He is prevented from accomplishing this purpose, but Don Jose, because of this attempt, knows that his career as a soldier is ended, so he yields to the plan of Carmen to have him cast his lot with the gypsy smugglers and he becomes an outlaw.

The opening of the third act discloses a wild and rocky pass in the mountains at night. Don Jose is passionately in love with Carmen and has forgotten Micela and his previous life. He has become an absolute slave to the charms of Carmen. It is the hour before dawn and smugglers are playing cards. Carmen and Don Jose have become angered at each other and the girl goes to where the men are playing cards and sings a song, "Let Me Know My Fate." Don Jose is placed on guard duty. A girl steals past him into the camp. It is Micela who has come to tell Don Jose that his mother is dying. Don Jose, on guard duty, sees a stranger approaching and shoots at him while the girl runs into a cave. The stranger is Escamillo, the toreador, and the two men learn they are rivals over Carmen. They draw knives and are about to fight when Carmen and the smugglers rush between them and stop them. Micela then brings the news that Don Jose must depart if he wants to see his mother before her death. Carmen, in scorn, dejects the request of Micela and Don Jose departs with Micela.

Entrance to Bull Ring.
In the fourth act the opening scene is the entrance way to the bull ring, where Escamillo is to appear. Carmen has completely deserted Don Jose for the gay toreador. Escamillo appears dressed in the bull ring uniform accompanied by Carmen, who also is dressed in pretty colors. They are greeted by the "Toreador's Song." As the toreador prepares to enter the ring he tells Carmen he will fight all the

JAP GLOBE GIRDLER LEAVES FOR AMERICA

Paris, April 27.—(P)—Ryukichi Matsui, Japanese round-the-world racer who is traveling westward, arrived at Le Bourget near Croydon at 3:40 o'clock this afternoon.

He will sail for New York tomorrow aboard the Aquitania exactly on schedule.

London, April 27.—(P)—Ryukichi Matsui, westward-bound competitor in the Japanese round-the-world race now in progress, left Croydon by plane today for Paris.

Before leaving he said that he feared his competitor, Toichiro Araki, who is eastward-bound, would beat him, as the connections traveling east to west are not as good as in the opposite direction. Araki plans to catch the Aquitania at Cherbourg tomorrow and on his arrival in New York hopes to fly the 3,000 miles across the United States.

Plans Underway For Improvements On Tamiami Trail

Miami, Fla., April 27.—(P)—Beautiful plans for the Tamiami Trail, first cross-Florida highway, which was formally opened yesterday, were under discussion today by members of the Tamiami Trail association, and other interested organizations, meeting in a room at the Everglades.

It was proposed to make of the new highway the most scenic route in the state, an enterprise which will be facilitated by the unusual nature of the country it traverses.

For most of its length the highway goes through the prairies, marsh lands and jungle swamps of the Everglades.

Baron G. Collier, whose influence was a big factor in completion of the $9,000,000 project, introduced pioneers of the trail work which began 14 years ago.

Other speakers were Captain James F. Jaudon, of Miami; Dr. Joseph Halton, of Sarasota; Mrs. Walter L. Wyle, of St. Petersburg, president of the State Federation of Women's Clubs; Mrs. R. H. Swartz, of Dunnellon, vice president; Louis Landcaster, of Sarasota; Mrs. Clarence B. Chadwick, of Fort Myers; and W. T. Edwards, vice president of the Gulf Coast Highway association.

Mr. Collier discussed the completed highway in its relation to the agricultural development of the vast Florida hinterland which it makes accessible for the first time. Mr. Edwards' topic was the port of the highway in the national highway system girdling the United States.

New York, April 27.—(P)—Mrs. Maude Virginia Jones Westin, heiress to the fortunes of her father, one of the founders of the Jones Bros. Tea company, today was on a honeymoon trip to California with her husband, David J. Shea, a cash register salesman.

The bride was divorced in 1922 from Clarence Frederick Westin, broker. She obtained the custody of their two sons, Clarence, now 15, and Douglas, 10.

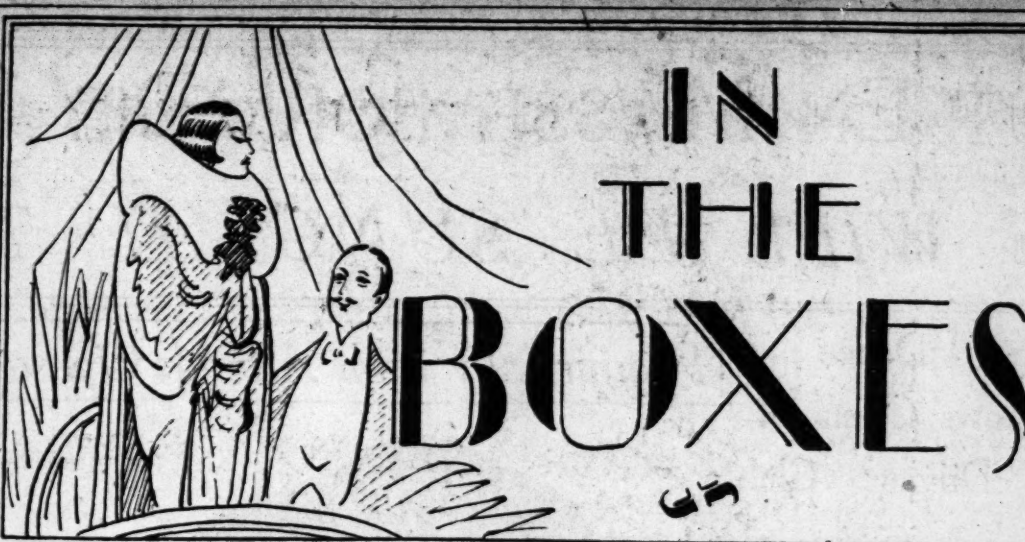

The huge fortune to which Mrs. Shea is one of the heirs was founded 45 years ago when her father, the late Frank Smith Jones, and her uncle, the late Cyrus D. Jones, opened a small tea and coffee store at Scranton.

Say Commerce Bodies Were Urged To Fight Boulder Canyon Bill

Washington, April 27.—(P)—Evidence that state chambers of commerce were urged to present a united front against the Swing-Johnson Boulder Canyon dam bill was given today in the federal trade commission's power financing investigation.

The proposition was put to state chambers of commerce representatives of about 15 states at Atlantic City, February 17 and 18, and it was brought out that the Virginia, Illinois and Connecticut chambers had adopted resolutions opposing passage of the bill.

ITALIAN AVIATOR KILLED IN JUMP FROM PARACHUTE
Rome, April 27.—(P)—Lieutenant General Alessandro Guidoni, former Italian air attaché at Washington, was killed today when a parachute with which he jumped from an airplane over the Montecello flying field failed to open.

Lieutenant Pieri, who was piloting the plane, said that the general possibly had made the jump too quickly. The ropes wound around his body and the parachute failed to spread.

This was the first time in more than 2,000 launchings that this particular type of parachute failed to open. It is said that if the air authorities had known that General Guidoni intended to try the parachute drop, he would have been prohibited from taking the risk.

Buy more than one loaf—the wrapper seals its freshness in

THE familiar lavender-and-white wrapper does more than identify for you this richer bread. It seals the freshness in. Consequently you can buy more than one loaf, to be certain of enough for the week-end, and know it will be tender and fresh and delicious.

And of course Southern Bread is the kind you would wish to serve your guests. Its fine white texture, its delicious brown crust, its rich, appealing flavor—all bespeak the housewife who selects with care and takes real pride in her table.

Surely your family deserves equal consideration. And they will appreciate it if you give them Southern Bread the whole week through—particularly the children who show a special liking for it. Southern Bread has rightly earned the preference people give it. For it's 20% richer.

Friday's Game Called Off By Rain and Cold

Tom Rogers and Pence May Pitch for Atlanta in Today's Twin Bill.

BY BEN COTHMAN.
It wasn't another straw that day, nor any other kind of day except a plain, ordinary Friday, so there really was little excuse for the rain and cold of yesterday necessitating the postponement of the second game of the current New Orleans-Atlanta series and putting a double bill on the books for today, the first game to start at 1:45 o'clock.

Still, the weatherman said Thursday night that it would rain Friday, so we suppose he has to be right once in a while.

The sun came out and shone in all its brilliancy Friday afternoon after the rainfall earlier in the day. The sun, however, had its boy friend, the wind, along, and even on a dry day a game Friday would have been played under rather execrable circumstances. An ordinary pop fly to short would probably have landed out near the flagpole when the wind got through taking it to ride.

Two Again.
So now the local line is faced with its second double-header within four days. The last was played Wednesday, against the one-time league-leading Mobile Bears, and the Crackers began accomplishing their feat—that of winning two shutout victories in three starts—by taking the first game of this twin bill. The Bears, however, came back to win the twelfth, that was after the Crackers had outplayed the w. l. Frank Merrill in Tuesday's series opener to score four runs in the ninth and swipe a 4-1 game from Mobile.

Thursday the hopefuls ventured forth and met up with Cousin David Danforth, of the Pelicans. Time was when Cousin David had the boys well, he had them in a tight place every time he pitched against Atlanta, or anyone else for that matter. But Thursday the team knocked him about from pillar to post, and when the game was over Atlanta had won three out of its last four starts.

Which means that things are getting better and better. The fact that Skipper Nicholson's grinning again, Colonel Spiller is pleased with the world in general because of the way local fanhood turned out to see the game while said team is reposing on the bottom of the league—albeit they aren't reposing there peacefully nor will they be there a goshawful long.

Thursday the Skipper nominated Tom Rogers, the Gallatin gunner, for duty on Friday. As there was no game Friday we suppose it's quite all right to go ahead on the supposition that Mr. Rogers is to fight again against the Pelicans in the first game today. Possibly in the second affair Russell Pence, at this point, will be the Crackers' hurling staff, will do the flinging for our side.

The twelve hits that rolled down the Crackers' bats Thursday seemed slightly indicative of the fact that these same bats are beginning to bark with the ferocity generally attributed them before the season opened. Not only that, but the hitting by the regulars pulled them up 11 percentage points on their average.

Paul Strand got two hits in three attempts Thursday and it was possible that he is getting into his stride. The big fellow's hat has been distressingly silent of late, except at times it has spoken loudly in a pin. With Strand rounding into form, that leaves Max West and Jim Poole with silent bats.

Star.
Poole has made five hits this season, and you know that can't last forever. But this correspondent is of the opinion that it's going to take a week or so of warm weather to get Poole into hitting form. West is a slump and should be snapping out of it most any day. He hasn't made a hit in the last four games. Nor can that last forever. Especially with West being the hitter he is.

But, on the whole, things are looking exceedingly bright for Skipper Nicholson's crew, and with this long homestay, the pitchers look better, as is the batting, more than several games are certain to be won.

HORSE GUARDS AND FT. MAC PLAY SUNDAY
Fort McPherson will be the scene of a polo game on Sunday at 3:30 p. m. The Horse Guards are bringing their mounts out and meet the Fort McPherson team. Both teams have held vigorous practices and are in condition for their initial game of the season. The previous attempts to play have been frustrated by rainy weather.

The probable lineup for the Horse Guards will have as No. 1, Ray Love, the hard-riding P. D. Christian as No. 2; Mr. Clarke as No. 3, and with the clever-playing Mr. Moran as No. 4. The Fort lineup will contain Major G. I. Frank as No. 1; Lieutenant Proctor as No. 2; Captain A. G. Goring as No. 3, and Major G. I. Frank as No. 4.

This game will be the first of a series to be played between the Fort team and the Horse Guards. Both teams are in excellent shape for playing. The Horse Guards have heretofore defeated the Fort team, but the new string of horses and the enthusiasm and interest shown by officers of the Fort promise hard-fought games for the Horse Guards.

JACK DELANEY

OVILA CHAPLAIN, heavyweight contender, was born at St. Francis, Canada, on March 19, 1900. He is of French Canadian descent. Years ago he moved to Bridgeport, Conn., and has made his home there since.

Early in his ring career Ovila went by his right name, but one night in a strange city the sports writers mistook the announcer's "Chaplaine" to be "Jack Delaney" and he has gone by the latter name since.

Delaney campaigned from 1919 until 1926, when he won the world's light-heavyweight title from Paul Herzig. He has since then been a heavyweight.

Delaney has had little success as a heavy, having been defeated twice in elimination tournaments and losing to Johnny Risko, Jimmy Maloney and Tom Heene.

Petrels Rout Mercer Bears By 14-8 Count

Bird Sluggers Hammer Opposing Hurler All Over Park.

Thomasville, Ga., April 27.—(Special)—Repeating their slaughtering batting attack which prevailed in the game Thursday, the Oglethorpe university baseball crew slugged their way to a 14-8 victory over the Mercer Bears today.

The Oglethorpe Petrels hopped on the offerings of Wright early in the game and piled up a sufficient lead to defeat their rivals. Phoney Smith relieved Wright in the fourth inning and succeeded in holding the winners to a couple of runs throughout the remainder of the contest.

Joe Hutton, on the mound for the Oglethorpe team, hurled a good game and kept the Mercer hits well scattered. One of the prime factors in the Oglethorpe victory was the loose fielding of the Maconites.

By virtue of their victory over the Bears today, the Petrels won a two-game decision. The two teams battled here yesterday, the Atlantans visitors from all over the state being called in the eighth inning because of darkness.

A large crowd of spectators witnessed the game despite the inclement and cold weather prevalent here today. This game was the feature entertainment of the Rose Garden festival, visitors from all over the state being present. There is some probability that the Oglethorpe-Mercer teams will clash here Saturday in another game.

New York, April 27.—(3)—Speculation for the advance ran riot in today's stock market. Fifin idiot in and issues crashed through to new highs for the year, or longer, on gains which ran as high as 15 percent. The top 100 issues added 1,000,000-share mark for the thirteenth time this year, with the ticker 46 minutes behind the market at the close.

Speculative interest centered at first in the railroad shares, but when heavy profit-taking developed in that group, it shifted to the shares of public utilities, motors and specialties.

Among the top issues were American Bank Note, American Express, American International, American Suuff, Chrysler, Curtiss-Wright, General Electric, General Motors, Life, General Cable, Electric Motors, International, International Harvester, Midvale, National Stores B, Motorola, National Stores B, Midvale Steel Products, preferred, National Tea, Postum Company, preferred, United States Cast Iron Pipe and Fittings, preferred, and United States Steel, preferred, all sold 4 to 12 points higher.

Rate Holds Good. Retention of the 4 per cent rediscount rate by the New York Federal Reserve bank, the relatively small increase in the rate for commercial loans and the apparent agreement on eastern trunk line consolidations provided the background for the advance in the price of 22s and 24s and the slight stiffening in commercial paper rates were disregarded by operators for the advance, who again were attracted to a large public sale following.

Opening prices in the railroad group were generally around the highest of the day. The New York Central, at 130, the highest price in its history, slipped back to 125 and closed at 125 5/8, unchanged on the day. Union Pacific rose 203 1/2 to 204 1/2, while the Missouri Pacific dropped back to 200 for a small fractional advance. St. Lawrence & Hudson duplicated yesterday's peak price of 22 1/2 and broke to 215 3/8, closing at 216 for a net loss of 7 points. Lehigh Valley dropped from 110 to 101 and held to 100 1/2.

Film Shares Heavy. Heaviness of the motion picture shares was due to selling inspired by reports that the industry was plotting a conspiracy in restraint of trade had been instituted against 12 of the largest distributors. Tobacco issues were heavy, but the market calmed a week on announcement of cigarette price cuts, held fairly steady in quiet trading.

Gold and money held at 5 per cent a day.

Foreign exchanges were mixed. Sterling cables were slightly firmer around 100.85. The Japanese and Portuguese currencies reacted about 10 points each.

loss. Chicago Northwestern, Chicago & Alton, Pennsylvania, Northern Pacific, Southern Railway and Wheeling & Lake Erie preferred also reached new high ground.

Oil shares changed hands in tremendous volume, stocks of 5,000 to 32,000 shares appearing on the tape at frequent intervals. Standard Oil

A sharp advance of about 10 cents a bushel in wheat prices, which lifted all active futures to new high level for the season, marked the commodity markets. Cotton advanced 75 cents to $1.50 a bale to buyers, owing to reports of adverse weather. Coffee and sugar quotations showed little change.

The Day in Finance

New York, April 27.—There was enough unfavorable news today to break the back of any bull stock market ever before witnessed in Wall street. The present bull stock market, however, ignored all unfavorable unprecedented bull stock market. A illustration of how accumulation of experience goes with accumulated wealth and earning power is found in today's announcement by the Export and Industrial Savings Bank news with the bulls predicting confidently that the bull stock market had only started and would continue to rally after the federal reserve bank here increased its rediscount rate.

Grain and cotton had another sensational rally on the late spring and unseasonable weather. Recent advances in these markets have attracted an outburst of wide public speculation such as seldom in the stock market since March.

Apparently there are no more bet left in either the stock market or the markets for grain or cotton.

Bulls Ignored

Bulls in railroad stocks ignored to day's developments in the grain and cotton markets on unseasonable weather. The fact that poor crops might have an unfavorable influence on railroad business was completely ignored.

That beginning with today there will be no more interest in the day's deposit to the day of withdrawal, is not necessary to go back very far to the time when savings banks first interest on deposit semi-annually. That means that money deposited on the third of January and withdrawn on the 29th of June, would draw no interest for practically the entire year.

It is not surprising, therefore, to find the protests of depositors against this old practice was to establish quarterly interest payments. But even under that plan a depositor could not get any credit for the money deposited say around the middle of January and withdrawn before the end of June. The next concession to the depositor's savings bank would allow interest on these three full months.

weekly increase of 1.1% in the weekly federal reserve statement showed a further weekly increase of $81,000,000 in the sale of government securities of the year. Rediscounts of member banks at the federal reserve banks were: another $39,000,000 compared with a week ago; and the weekly borrowings were $22,000,000 less than a week ago. In the meantime commercial loans of the member banks are down.

Despite the foregoing, the stock market opened higher and very active with sensational gains during the early trading in Consolidated Gas, General Motors, Delaware & Hudson, Pennsylvania and with the tape around noon reported as anywhere from 43 to 50 minutes behind transactions on the floor, it being impossible in the existing confusion to tell exactly how far.

Rail Issues Soar.

Delaware & Hudson, which sold below 200 early this week, closing at 223 last night, opened at 224 3/4 and shot up to 229 1/2 Pennsylvania with the right to subscribe to new stock worth 23-8 points coming off opened at 112 1/2 down to a quarter of a point from last night's closing, and then advanced quickly to 72-14.

Some Wall Street railroad men cannot understand why Pennsylvania has not purchased Delaware & Hudson's holdings of Washash & Lehigh Valley for $63,000,000 cash inasmuch as Pennsylvania already has just as good or less good parallels these roads, especially Washash. There is no question, however, but that Delaware & Hudson made $23,000,000 profit which will add to $53 a share on its own outstanding stock.

Pennsylvania offering of new stock to shareholders announced weeks ago will bring in $63,000,000 cash. This makes it appear that the deal with the road, although not announced, was put through weeks ago.

Wall Street Conclusions.

Wall street conclusions on the latest developments in the eastern trunk line situations are that Lorie came out much better than generally expected and that the old deal feeling between Pennsylvania and New York Central has not been improved.
